Foreword

The scribe bends low over his parchment. His pen moves across the blank pages and the pictures of succeeding years take form. Here a touch of seriousness in the brief record of the influence of high ideals, mingled with a bit of the light gayety of an almost-forgotten Prom; here the majesty of the stately elms and purple shadows crowning the Hill, shot through with the eager dreams of youth looking into the future. The ever present story of Wisconsin is being written.

Arrested by the stern note of the bugle calling to arms, the scribe turns the page and writes in scarlet the names and deeds of those sons of Wisconsin who, endowed with a spirit without which there could have been no peace in the world, chose the khaki and sword instead of cap and gown. With no lance broken in life's tournament, these men left the peaceful ways for the ways of war; left the dawn just breaking over Lake Mendota for the sunset over the Somme. Falling thus, they wanted no recompense.

The name of one man is written again and again across the pages of the story which is Wisconsin; that name is Charles Richard Van Hise, the incarnation of the virile spirit of peace-time and war-time Wisconsin. To him, in its crisis, the University turned; upon him rested the responsibility of meeting an unparalleled situation in its history. It was justly fitting that the last days of a man who had given the best efforts of his life in building an insitution upon the splendid ideal of unhampered human development, should be devoted to equipping and inspiring men to go forth and secure this freedom for a distressed world.

Again the high, clear note of the bugle, sounding taps to the spirit of war, peals forth. Another page is turned, and the thread of the story, so rudely broken by grim battle, is taken up again. The finger of war has written and moved on. But it has changed the plot of the story. A thread of something infinitely finer has been introduced, which cannot, must not, be disregarded. The indelible influence will pervade the pages of the future and the spirit of its warning stand forth that all men may read!

Ex-President Charles Richard Van Hise

Dedication

To the spirit of the new era, born in the crucible of war and nourished in the dawn of a new day, this Badger is dedicated. Here, in the quiet ways, where men have ever learned the path of honor, the light of truth, the will to work for man, there is a cleaner, freer atmosphere and a higher, clearer call to life. The power of learning; the soberness of experience; the pleasure of friendship; the stimulation of ideals; these have ever been among Wisconsin's gifts to her sons and daughters. To each she has given something of her elusive, almost indefinable spirit, best expressed perhaps in her motto-numen lumen. Now, when the soul of the university is reaching upward toward the heights, Wisconsin turns to a new leader-President Edward Anderson Birge. In the exercise of the fullness of his wisdom and power, President Birge may build with a master hand. Catching the higher purpose of her president, Wisconsin may reflect in the lives of those who call her Alma Mater, that intangible something written, not on parchments of sheep skin, but on the hearts of man and redounding to the glory of the race.

President Edward Anderson Birge

"We rejoice that they have dwelt among us."

The New Era

By Pres. E. A. Birge

I hope that the armistice year has been a kind of interregnum between war and peace and that with the formal exchange of ratifications of the treaty on January 10, the new era of peace may begin, over most of the world at least. For certainly the months on which the world looks back as 1919 passes into 1920 do not constitute a year which one would choose for the opening of an era, unless, indeed, he is firm in the faith that "a bad beginning makes a good ending".

But this view of things belongs rather to the world at large, than to our University, to which the year has brought a new era and with it new problems, new responsibilities, and new opportunities. To the future historian, the break in higher education occassioned by the war will not seem so sudden or so great as it does to us, for it has been clearly foreshadowed during many years. But it will always remain noteworthy, and especially so at Wisconsin. No future year will see a freshman class nearly eighty per cent larger than any of its precedessors. This is only one of the many facts in the history of the current year which have no precedent; and these facts are the evidence of a new era, of an era in which the connection between higher education and success is seen more clearly and by far more people than ever before; an era in which business as well as the professions and public affairs of all kinds turn for aid to the universities.

This means that a definite relation between the wider affairs of the world and higher education, which began to be established a generation ago, has now been completed. With this situation came great opportunities and also the dangers which attend large opportunity. There is before us the opportunity of influencing and raising common life as never before; and there is also the danger that the university will be swept into the common movement of that life, that higher learning will become a servant rather than a guide, that students will seek learning rather for the promise of cash than for the sake of intellectual life. In such case any large increase of the extent of university influence is far outweighed by the restriction of a short-sighted policy.

Thus if the new era is to be the worthy as well as the larger successor of that which went before, we must enter it with high aim and firm principles. Nor can either the university or the student easily find better words to express these than are those of Bryce—"A university should reflect the spirit of the times without yielding to it". With this purpose and with confidence in its fulfillment we enter the "new era".

LETTERS AND SCIENCE

The College of Letters and Science

Dean G. C. Sellery

Instruction in the University began in February 1849. At that time the University had in operation only a preparatory school of twenty pupils under Professor John W. Sterling. From 1849 to the outbreak of the Civil War the University experienced the vicissitudes of early youth, adding only six members to its instructional staff. At the time of the Civil War, many of the students joined the ranks and so depleted the school that in 1864 no commencement exercises were held as there was only one senior in residence at the time.

Until the establishment of the Law School in 1868, what is now known as the College of Letters and Science constituted practically the whole of the university. At the time of the founding of the Law School provision was made for the College of Agriculture. Thereafter the College of Letters and Science developed courses which later became the College of Engineering and the Medical School. Federal and state grants, private endowments, and far above all, provision by the legislature have made it possible to erect many new buildings and to provide increased equipment and staff. With the addition of more varied courses the enrollment in the college has increased from the original twenty students in 1849 to a total of 4,622 this year.

The central aim and purpose of the College is to provide the student seeking a higher education, a foundation of liberal training. It gives both general and special preparation to fit students for law and medicine. It gives professional and semi-professional training in many departments of graduate study and research, and it furnishes to under-graduates quasi-professional training for teaching in various lines, in preparation for business, for work as a chemist, journalist, man of public affairs, and in other directions. Above all the College aims to help men and women to lead an intellectual life.

COMMERCE

The Course In Commerce

Prof. W. A. Scott

The Course in Commerce was opened in the fall of 1900 for the purpose of aiding young people who expected to devote their lives to business or to vocations in which a knowledge of business is essential. The University had previously developed courses for the training of farmers, engineers, lawyers and pharmacists and the business interests of the state properly felt that the University ought to extend similar assistance to them.

At that time there were no courses of this kind in complete operation in this country. The Wharton School of Finance and Economy at the University of Pennsylvania was in existence but its curriculum was confined to fundamental courses in political and social science and did not include what would now be called a course in business. The University of California had the beginnings of a course on paper but not in full operation. There were an abundance of so-called business colleges, but their aims were entirely different and their courses excessively narrow, short and elementary.

Before completing our course a careful study was made of European institutions of this kind, many of which had been in operation for many years and were well developed, and their experience was used so far as conditions in this country would permit. From that beginning our course has developed from year to year, additions and modifications being made to fit the special needs of our students.

The total enrollment in the course was 85 the first year, 219 at the end of the first five year period, 327 at the end of the second, 484 at the end of the third, and 1327 at the beginning of the present academic year.

In our course of training valuable adjuncts of the curriculum are such student organizations as the men's and women's Commerce Club, Beta Gamma Sigma, and the recently established women's society, Alpha Gamma Pi. In the kind of work they do and the influence they exert on the body of commerce students these organizations are of great value and in some respects unique.

ENGINEERING

The College of Engineering

Dean F. E. Turneaure

The first announcement of instruction in engineering in the University appeared in the catalog of 1869-70. At this time instruction in the elements of engineering was offered to the juniors and seniors in the College of Liberal Arts. The faculty consisted of one professor who was at the same time Professor of Military Science. Three students comprised the first graduating class and received their diplomas in A course in Metallurgical Engineering was established in 1871 at the beginning of the presidency of Dr. John H. Twombly, but owing to the small number of students that took advantage of the course, it was abolished in 1896. Among the sixteen graduates of this course was the late President Van Hise, who completed the course in 1879.

During the presidency of Dr. John Bascom, 1847-1887, the University determined upon the policy of establishing a strong group of technical colleges and during this time and later, the College of Engineering opened a number of new courses. In 1875 the Mechanical Engineering course was started; in 1891 the Electrical Engineering course; in 1902 the Chemical Engineering course; and in 1909 the Mining and Metallurgical course was reestablished.

The growth of the college was very slow until about 1898, but from that time until 1906 the growth was very rapid, the attendance increasing from 200 to about 800. Since 1906 the growth in attendance has been slow but steady and now there are 1,084 students in the various courses. The increase in the teaching staff has been proportionately as great as has been the increase in building and equipment. In 1900 the College moved into quarters of its own, the present main engineering building. It seems likely that the College is now at the beginning of another rapid period of expansion, and while laboratories and classrooms may be overtaxed for a short time by the large increase in attendance, we are certain that ample funds will promptly be provided, and that the standard of the work will be maintained fully equal to that of other departments of the University.

PGRICULTURE.

The College of Agriculture

Dean H. L. Russell

Agricultural instruction at the University of Wisconsin was provided for as early as 1866 in the statutes reorganizing the University. Agricultural Chemistry constituted the essential part of the course in agriculture and for many years the emphasis of the college was placed on the work of the Experiment Station.

In 1900 the Agricultural College had ten students in the Long Course. In the next decade came the transfer of Home Economics to the Agricultural College and an influx of students into both of these courses which was quite phenomenal.

Our boys responded to the call of the colors at the beginning of the World War and those of our faculty who remained placed their efforts on food production. The extension service extended its county agent system until practically every county had an agent, and Wisconsin went over the top in every drive for increased food production.

At the close of the war many of our students returned to complete their courses and the present year we have a registration almost equal to our maximum registration prior to the war. With 275 students in home economics, 650 in agriculture, 110 graduate students, 550 in short courses and 100 returned soldiers in rehabilitation work we have experienced a profitable

Our students have returned with a new spirit and have taken hold of student activities with new ideals. All students of the Agricultural College have formed the Agricultural College Federation to work for the best interests of the college. Several convocations and a mixer have been held. The Country Magazine has experienced the most successful year of its history. A student's stock judging team represented the College at the International Fat Stock Show and did creditable work. A Saddle and Sirloin Club has been organized by the students of the Animal Husbandry department. Our literary and honorary societies for agriculture and home economics are flourishing.

The future for agriculture never was brighter. The war demonstrated the importance of agriculture and the place of the trained man in the business of agriculture.

MEDICINE

The Medical School

Dean C. R. Bardeen

By an act of the legislature in 1848, a department of medicine was authorized at Wisconsin. A medical faculty was appointed for the year 1855-56 but does not appear to have been active. At this time there were few instructors and the policy of the University was to stick as much as possible to the classical courses, and very little effort to give instruction in any professional branches was made. In fact, about twenty-five years passed before effective teaching was begun at the University in pre-medical sciences. About 1875 a number of courses in pre-medical sciences were offered to the students, but few took advantage of them because of the limited equipment and teaching staff. These courses were continued, however, and at the beginning of the presidency of Charles R. Van Hise a new interest was shown along medical lines. This interest culminated in the establishment of the two year medical course in 1907. Since then the growth of the school has been steady, and with the completion of the new Infirmary and the Bradley Memorial Hospital, the school has taken another big step toward the establishment of a regular four year course. The enrollment records show a total of 135 men and women in the two year course.

Conditions in medical education meanwhile, have been such that Wisconsin must provide for a complete clinical course in the immediate future if Wisconsin men and women are to be assured of an opportunity to study medicine and the state is to be assured of a supply of well trained physicians. The requirements of medical education are now so high that the better schools throughout the country are limiting the number of students accepted. Wisconsin cannot depend indefinitely on outside colleges to do the work she should do in this important branch of higher education. It is hoped that in time the University will be able to offer a regular four year course to the men and women who wish to avail themselves of a complete medical education.

LAW CO.

The Law School

Dean H. S. Richards

The Law School, the oldest professional department in the University, has been in existence fifty-two years. It has progressed from a one year school to a three year school, from no entrance requirements to two years of college work, from a nominal to a real connection with the University, from a faculty composed of lawyers and judges, giving incidental attention to teaching to a faculty of six devoting their entire time to legal research and teaching, from no equipment to a building of its own, and a library superior to most schools, and equal in actual, usable material to the best.

Its graduates have taken a prominent part in the development of the state and the university; indeed, there is no other group of university graduates who have been more helpful to the university in securing adequate support from the state. Prior to 1900 half of the graduates of the university were from the Law School. The Law School has lived in a period of rapid development of law, and legal education. It has seen the law in the way of being restored to its ancient place as a university study. In all advances it has stood in the van. One of the first schools west of the Alleghanies to adopt a three year course and the first school but one west of the Alleghanies to require college study as preliminary to legal study.

The law is not for lawyers alone. It is a means to an end, and that end is justice. It should be the vital concern of every citizen, and its proper teaching and investigation chief among the functions of a university. The law is a living, growing thing that will progress with the needs of mankind, if guided by men who know its history, philosophy and purpose. It is a vital and controlling factor in all social and economic development, and can not be ignored by those who aspire to social and economic knowledge and leadership. When this is recognized as it must be, the study of law will receive a new impetus. The future of the law is largely in the hands of the university law schools.

The enrollment in the Law School this year is 166. Of this number 165 are men and one is a woman.

A New Era In Wisconsin Athletics

BY TOM E. JONES

The close of the war ended a period of successful Wisconsin athlettics. We are now starting on a new era of athletic accomplishment. Will this new period surpass the old? From every indication the Athletic Department feels confident that it will. The war popularized athletics more than ever before, and created a widespread appreciation of their value. Because of the splendid record of the college athlete during the war, many of our educators who in the past have opposed intercollegiate athletics, now favor them as a very important part of every students training.

In reviewing the athletic history of the University, the alumni may be pardoned for a feeling of pride in the old teams whose fairness and fight gave to the school an enviable reputation. For Wisconsin teams have always been respected and feared by their western opponents; and our track teams and crews have brought us worthy recognition in the east.

At the opening of the war, Wisconsin had perhaps as fine an array of athletes as ever wore the Cardinal at one time. Some of these athletics have returned to compete again, but by far the majority ran their last race or played their last game before we entered the war. It is now our task to develop men who will replace these former stars. Judging from the interest evinced in athletics since the close of the war this will be accomplished. The prediction that the war would bring home the need of experience in active fighting games is being conclusively proved by the fact that a greater number of students are now actively participating in sport of every kind than ever before in the history of the university.

One phase of this interest is in rowing. An increasingly insistent demand on the part of the alumni and student body that rowing be re-established as an intercollegiate sport would seem to indicate that in the not far distant future, the Cardinal will again be represented on the Hudson.

Intercollegiate athletics will always form one of the most important phases of college life. For this reason it is the aim of the department that its high standard of success and sportsmanship shall be maintained. No other phase of college life has so great an influence on the development of college loyalty and spirit. Because of this influence of athletics on the life of our university, and because our university is to a certain extent judged by the sportsmanship and success of the teams that represent it, we cannot afford to have, in this new era of athletics that is opening before us, anything but the best. We look for teams that will bring us victories—victories founded on clean, fair, play. We must build again, and build better.

Wisconsin's past is a period of achievement in athletics. The ever changing story has contained its share of victories and defeats, but the Cardinal thread has run predominately near the top throughout. The names of Wisconsin's great individual athletes, the O'Deas, the Kennedys, the Harveys, the Mucks, and the Simpsons, are prominently printed on the pages of the Conference and National athletic records. Wisconsin has also turned out great teams, such as the Conference Champion Baseball and Football Teams of 1912, the basketball teams of 1912-14 and 16 which swept everything before them in a whirlwind fashion finishing the season with a 1000% record; or the crew of 1912, which barely lost the Poughkeepsie Regatta to Cornell by three seconds. Wisconsin's athletic history is replete with such instances. The name of the Badger has been carried throughout the West and into the East by men whose ability and fitness was undoubted.

The coming of the war marked the end of an era in Wisconsin athletics. The steady march was interrupted, and for a period of several years athletics marked time. With the coming of peace, Wisconsin may look forward to an even greater period of achievement and victory. There are shoes to be filled, but Wisconsin will never find herself lacking in men to fill them. The glory of the past is of value only in so far as it serves to inspire and reflect the future. To Wisconsin's past we point with pride. History must repeat.

Howard Buck

"Cub" Buck won his numerals on his freshman team in 1910, and during the next three years held down a regular position in Wisconsin's line, captaining the 1915 team. Besides his record in football, Buck represented Wisconsin for several years in inter-collegiate wrestling.

"Buts" Butler, all-American Tackle in 1912, and all-Western tackle a year later, won his W in football, track and water-polo. He was a heavy line man, but very fast and shifty. He won his W in track in the weight events and captained a champion water polo team in 1911.

Robert P. Butler

"Pat" O'Dea, known throughout the conference as the "Kangaroo Kicker", played varsity football during his entire four years at Wisconsin, completing his record by captaining the team of 1900. He was also a track athlete, winning his W by work in the dashes, hurdles and broad jump. His greatest feat was a goal from the field dropped from the sixty yard line during his last year on the team.

Patrick J. O'Dea

"Keckie" Moll, Wisconsin's star quarter-back and punter, played for three years on the varsity. He piloted the team through the season of 1912, when Wisconsin won her first conference championship in twelve years. Moll captained the conference championship baseball team of 1912, playing second base.

"Eddie" Gillette won three W's on varsity football teams, being selected for all-Eestern halfback in 1912 and all-American halfback in his last year. Gillette won his W in baseball in 1912, and was awarded an aWa in track and basketball. He holds the Wisconsin record for the broad jump.

In the conference meets Cardinal track teams won four outdoor championships and one indoor championship for Wisconsin. In 1915-1916 two consecutive victories gave Wisconsin hope of securing permanent possession of the conference cup. With the new and much improved track facilities at Camp Randall to look forward to, and the excellent records of former teams to look back upon, Wisconsin's track future shows splendid prospects.

Arlie Mucks

Arlie Mucks represented Wisconsin during the seasons of 1915 and 1916 in the conference track meet and by winning first place both years in the discus throw and shot put, contributed much to Wisconsin's two consecutive victories. He represented the United States in the Olympic Meet held in Sweden in 1912 and holds the world's record in the discus throw.

William Dow Harvey, captain of the conference championship team of 1916, ran for three years on the varsity team as a miler and a half-miler. In his sophomore year he broke the Wisconsin record for the half mile. Harvey's work in the Drake relays was responsible for establishing records in the two and four mile events. Scott of Missouri broke the conference record to beat him in the half-mile in 1916.

Dow Harvey

During the last seven years Wisconsin has won five conference championships, going through three seasons with a percentage of one thousand. In these seven years, one hundred and eleven games were played and one hundred and one of these were Wisconsin victories. No overtime games were lost. With this record to look back upon, it is imperative for the Badger teams of the future to keep the standard as high as it has been formerly set.

The baseball team of 1912, captained by "Keckie" Moll of football fame, won Wisconsin's first conference baseball championship. John Richards coached the outfit, and the success of the season was directly attributable to his coaching and to the extended southern training trip in the spring. Moll, who played second base, was the slugger of the team, having driven in more runs than any other man on the team. Waller, in the outfield, fielded 1000% and batted over 400 during the entire season. Grell pitched in the majority of the games and held his opponents well in hand at all times. Illinois, the runner up in the conference, has always been Wisconsin's closest rival.

The season of 1912 is one to be looked back upon with pride to be used as a model for future nines.

1894 BASEBALL TEAM

For fifteen consecutive years, the red-tipped blades of Wisconsin's crew dipped and flashed in the Poughkeepsie Regatta held every June on the Hudson River. Though never "sweeping the river" in a regatta, Wisconsin's crew won three second places and a number of third and fourth places in competition with the best crews of the east.

The intensive training system necessary to put a crew in condition for a four mile race, and the strain of the race itself, caused the faculty to take action against intercollegiate rowing in 1914. Since then the course has been reduced to three miles.

The trip east, with two weeks training on the Hudson, was an expensive trip, but it brought Wisconsin to the attention of the eastern schools as the only western representative in their annual regatta. Leland-Stanford is now the western representative, sending a crew from California each season. It was with great regret that the East saw Wisconsin drop out of the Pough-keepsie event, and with greater regret that Wisconsin saw interest in what had been a major sport for so long gradually die out.

Now that the course has been officially shortened to three miles, the objection that crew racing was too great a strain is removed. With this in mind it is to be hoped that Wisconsin removed. With this in mind it is to be hoped that Wisconsin may again see her crew on Lake Mendota, that "Dad" Vail may again coach a Badger team, and that, "Are you ready, Wisconsin?" will ring out over the Hudson when the crews come into line.

The Inter-collegiate Conference Medal is awarded annually at each of the ten schools composing the Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association to the graduating student showing himself to be the best scholar-athlete of his class. The faculty and athletic council make the selection. The awarding of this medal was innovated in 1915.

Kennedy

Martin "Tom" Kennedy was the first Wisconsin man to win the medal. It was awarded to him in recognition of his service on three varsity crews and on two varsity football squads. His scholastic average for four years was 85.4.

Dow Harvey, holder of the Wisconsin record for the half-mile, won the emblem in 1916. His record shows the winning of three W's in track, and one in cross country. He captained the conference champion team in 1916. His four year average was 91.1.

Burke

Mead Burke won the second medal to be awarded to a track man. He made three W's as a hurdler. holding the varsity indoor record for the forty yard high hurdles. His scholastic average was 87.6.

Eber Simpson, Wisconsin's greatest all-round athlete won the medal by capturing seven W's in three major sports while maintaining an average of 84. Simpson played in the backfield on three varsity football teams, forward on two basketball fives, and filled nearly every position on the varsity baseball team for two seasons.

Simpson

"Chuck" Carpenter, captain of the 1919 football team, was the last recipient of the medal, receiving it in 1919. He played for three seasons at center for that position on the All-Western eleven in his last year. He was in Union Vaudeville three years, was business manager of the Badger one year, was president of the Athletic Board, and maintained a scholastic standing of 85.8.

Carpenter played a steady dependable game in the center of the line during the entire season. Alert in breaking through and nailing the runner and shifty in following the play behind his own line, he showed himself to be an aggressive, hardfighting leader. His steadiness was a great aid to the morale of the team. Carpenter's passing was accurate, and his line play on the attack opened up holes for frequent small gains. In the Ohio State and Chicago games his playing was particularly marked, as in both of these games he stopped many plays before they got well under way. He secured a position on Eckersall's all-Western eleven, and honorable mention from Walter H. Camp in his all-American selection.

In meeting the interference before it was under way and smashing it, sometimes getting the runner himself, Weston made the left end of the line secure against any consistent gains on endruns. He showed considerable ability in getting down the field to cover kicks and in breaking up and sifting through the interference. Weston tackled hard and clean. On the attack, he showed himself a good follower of interference and a good man on the receiving end of passes. He was elected captain of the 1920 Badger team. Camp placed Weston at left end on his second all-American team.

At the right end of the line Meyers played a consistent brand of football during the entire season. A hard sure tackler, and a speedy runner, he was down under every kick and was principally responsible for the comparatively few gains that were made by Badger opponents in running back punts. He handled passes accurately and cleanly, and was a hard man to stop after getting away with the ball. His most spectacular play was in the Minnesota game, when he scored Wisconsin's only touchdown, after grabbing a pass out of the air and dodging through most of the Gopher team for a forty yard run to the goal line Meyers secured the position of right end on the all-Western team picked by Eckersall.

Though out of the Minnesota, Ohio, and Chicago games during most of the play on account of an injured ankle, Jacobi demonstrated enough ability in the early games of the season to rank him as one of the best backs in the conference. He was a consistent ground gainer and a man who kept his feet well when hitting the line. In the Illinois game he played his best football. His hard line smashes were largely responsible for getting the ball within scoring distance. The fact that he was out of the game so much was a big factor in eliminating Wisconsin from Conference honors.

John R. Taylor, Guard

Taylor won his "W" by his excellent play in the Chicago game. He proved a steady, dependable man all season. In the final contest with Chicago, he opened up holes for line plunges and blocked the smashes of Chicago backs time and again. His interference in Davey's sixty yard run was partly responsible for the Wisconsin victory.

Bunge played the most consistent football of any man in the Wisconsin line. He held down his position in the center of the line during every game on the schedule, and holds the unusual distinction of not having time taken out for him once. Bunge played a scrappy game, and was mixed up in every play that came through his side of the line. His best football was in the Chicago game, when he repeatedly broke through in time to smash end runs. Bunge has another year on the team.

George C. Bunge, Guard

James L. Brader, Tackle

Though handicapped with a bad ankle during the latter part of the season, Brader proved himself an invaluable lineman, and showed possibilities of becoming a stellar tackle or end during the next two years. He held down an end position on the team in 1918, but because of the wealth of excellent material at that position this year, Richards shifted him to tackle.

Gould's wonderful work as defensive half back in the Ohio State game was one of the best exhibitions of defensive play seen in the conference this season. In carrying the ball, he hit the line hard and smashed on and outside of tackle for good gains, but his best work on the offensive was as interference. His father played on the same team with Coach Richards in 1895.

Stevens Gould, Full-back

Two hundred and twelve pounds in weight coupled with the ability to move quickly, tackle hard, and turn the play in on his side of the line, was the combination that enabled Scott to put up a good brand of football at tackle. He had a fast charge, met the interference well, and could be depended upon to open up holes for off-tackle smashes in attack. Though stocky and powerfully built, he handled his weight well, and frequently was close on the heels of the ends in covering punts.

Ralph Scott, Tackle

Allan C. Davey, Quarterback

Davey's spectacular run in the last few minutes of the Chicago game proved the climax of a successful season. Davey handled the team well and showed good judgment in selecting his men and plays. He was a fast man with the ball and exceptionally good in open field running, where his ability to dodge tacklers enabled him to run back kicks for good gains. In the Chicago game he ran back a punt sixty yards for a touchdown through the entire Maroon eleven. He showed considerable ability in keeping his feet even after being hit by a tackler. His passing to the backfield was accurate and fast. Davey will be eligible for the 1920 Badger team.

Elliott was the fastest man in the Wisconsin back-field. Oss of Minnesota and Harley of Ohio State were the only two men in the conference whose speed was as great. He proved an excellent man on long sweeping end runs, and also gained much ground through the line because of his ability to get under way quickly and hold his feet. His end runs and smashes in the Ohio State game gained more ground than the work of Harley and Bliss combined.

Alvin C. Elliott, Half-back

Guy M. Sundt, Half-back

Though out of the game for part of the season with a bad knee, Sundt was considered, by western football critics, as one of the best backs in the conference. His punting was an important factor in every game. He got the ball away with a full swing that gave it carrying power for both length and height. The ends experienced little trouble in getting down under his punts. With Sundt punting, Wisconsin gained ground almost every time on an exchange on kicks.

Howard B. Stark, Tackle

With the opening out of the line, the tackle has become the favorite target of attack; the burden of breaking through and getting the runner is thrown more and more on this player. Stark showed himself well able to play a defensive and offensive tackle in good shape. He held the line well in giving the backfield time to get away on end runs, and in enabling Sundt to get his punts off without being hurried. Stark should prove a valuable asset to the line in the next season.

Fladoes held down a regular position at guard and tackle during the whole season. Though not rounding into form until midseason, he played excellent football during the last three conference games. His chief ability lay in his defensive play and in his ability to sift through the interference and get the man with the ball. Fladoes graduates in June.

Shorney is another Sophomore who won his W and has still two more seasons ahead of him. He was especially strong in blocking line plunges and in getting through to break up end runs before they were under way.

Matchette possesses all the qualities of a good quarter-back. He is fast, handles the ball accurately, and shows good judgment in calling for plays. He was awarded an aWa for last season's work, and will have two more years in which to win his W.

Review of the 1919 Football Season

The football season brought back a valuable nucleus of varsity material around which Coach John Richards built a strong and, on the whole, a very successful eleven. With the exception of the disastrous game with Minnesota on Homecoming Day, the team made a creditable showing in every conference game, winning three out of the five games played and defeating the conference champions, Illinois, by a 14-10 score.

With the call for candidates last fall, a squad of more than fifty men reported to Richards and Kent, among whom were eight 1917 veterans: Carpenter, Scott, Davey, Gould, Meyers, Jacobi, Weston, and Fladoes. Three weeks of preliminary practice, during which varsity men alternated between the first and second teams, enabled Richards to make a temporary selection for the game with Ripon College. This game resulted in an easy victory 37-0.

The opposition afforded by Ripon aided but little in pointing out the team's weaknesses, and Wisconsin entered the Marquette game a week later with strong confidence of an easy victory. Marquette played a fast offensive game and had little difficulty in finding holes in the Wisconsin line. The final punch was lacking, however, and they failed to score, while Wisconsin was able to carry the ball across their line twice. A 45 yard run by Smith for a touchdown was a feature of the contest.

Several changes in the lineup were made by Richards during the two weeks prior to the first conference game at Northwestern. Brader was shifted from end to tackle to strengthen the line. Bunge and Scott were placed at guard, and the ends were taken care of by Weston and Meyers, who subsequently proved themselves to be the best pair of ends in the conference. A shifty combination in the backfield which comprised weight and speed was discovered by placing Davey at quarterback, Jacobi at full, and alternating with Sundt, Gould, and Elliott at the halves.

With this lineup, Wisconsin went into her first conference game October 18th at Evanston. Five minutes after play start, Wisconsin had carried the ball to Northwestern's 10 yard line, and a short pass to Weston brought a touchdown. Jacobi kicked goal. The three final points in Wisconsin's 10-6 victory were added early in the second period when Davey dropped a pretty field goal from outside the twenty-five yard line. Northwestern's only score came as a result of a series of short passes in the third quarter, Payton going over for the six points.

Meeting the strong Illinois eleven the following Saturday at Urbana, Wisconsin played a hard hitting, line plunging game, and came out with the large end of a 14-10 score. Jacobi's line plunging was instrumental in placing the pig skin within scoring distance.

Bad weather and little practice, injured men, and a dash of overconfidence brought on a slump. After a week of rest, Minnesota invaded the Badger Camp. The occasion was the celebration of Wisconsin's Annual Homecoming Day, and the stands were crowded with students and old grads. The Minnesota shift was working perfectly with Lampi and Oss carrying the ball.

No Gain—Ohio Game

Thrown for a Loss-Ohio Game

Minnesota crossed Wisconsin's line three times. A spectacular pass, Barr to Meyers, in the last quarter saved Wisconsin from a scoreless defeat, and the game ended with the score 19-6.

Two weeks intervened between the Minnesota and Ohio State games, and these two weeks were used in whipping the team into shape to meet the undefeated Ohio team. To a close follower of conference athletics, the game was a victory for Wisconsin. Out-played during three quarters and unable to make first down more than three times, Ohio State worked the ball to the twenty yard line in the last quarter, and Harley, who had been unable to advance the ball during the entire game, kicked an easy goal from the field. During the first three quarters of the game, Wisconsin worked the ball to within scoring distance several times but lacked the final punch.

The victory at Chicago closed the 1919 season. The day was perfect and the game exceptionally good from the spectator's viewpoint. Wisconsin was held within half a foot of the goal line during the first period. Working the ball back to the 35 yard line, Barr dropped the ball between the posts from a difficult angle. In the second period, the Maroons tied up the score by a pretty goal from the field. The game see-sawed back and forth until the last part of the fourth quarter, when a 3-3 tie seemed imminent. Davey, going in for Barr in the last few minutes, caught a punt on his own 60 yard line and carried the ball through the entire Maroon eleven for a touchdown. Nobody cared whether the goal was kicked or missed, but when it sailed between the posts a 10-3 victory had been completed.

Wisconsin 10-Chicago 3

Prospect for 1920

By Captain-elect Frank L. Weston

Wisconsin may not win the conference football championship next fall, but with "T" Gould, Ralph Scott, Allan Davey, George Bunge, "Shorty" Barr, Fred Smith, Guy Sundt, "Bill" Collins, "Rowdy" Elliot, "Howie" Stark, and Coach John R. Richards back again, the possibility of losing seems slight. The loss of Captain Carpenter, Paul Meyers, and Rheingold Jacobi may seem irreparable, but their places will be filled in spirit at least. And there are a number of freshmen from this year's squad who are certain to give the older men a stiff fight next fall for Varsity jobs.

The right men will be there, and the right coach will be there. The University of Wisconsin is an institution worthy to fight for on the football field as well as any other field, and the team will be a team of fighters. Next year is going to be the greatest year in decades for Wisconsin. It will be great not merely because of the team and its coach, but because the entire university, from the faculty down to the greenest freshman, is going to be there to carry Wisconsin to victory.

"Hit 'em hard, hit 'em low, come on, Wisconsin, "LET'S GO!"

The basketball season of 1919-20 was one of the most erratic seasons Wisconsin has ever gone through. Although we finished in fifth place in the conference standings, it was generally conceded that the team was one of the three best in the conference. The team seemed to have the faculty of outplaying the better, and of unexpectedly dropping games to the weaker teams. The season is looked upon as being successful since we defeated Chicago, Illinois, and the rest of our opponents at least once, and Ohio State twice.

Coach Lowman was handicapped at the beginning, and throughout the season by the ineligibility of several men who were looked upon as being of varsity caliber, and injuries to several of the first string men also interfered with the development of team play during the preliminary season. The injury to Pease, two days before the opening of the conference season, necessitated the breaking in of a new man for the guard position, and resulted in the temporary disorganization of the team just at a time when it should have been hitting its stride. Before the right man was found the season was well under way with one game won and three lost.

Iowa, the first conference team met was defeated at Iowa City by a score, 35-18. The following Saturday we lost to Chicago 36-19, and on Monday lost our first and only home game, to Iowa 21-20. On Saturday, January 24, the team travelled to Champaign and lost a 43-20 game to Illinois. Team play showed much improvement in this game, but the basket shooting was off color, as the score indicates. Minnesota was taken into camp January 31 on the home floor by the score, 28-12, and after the mid-year exams Michigan was defeated.

The Chicago victory ended the varsity basket ball careers of Zulfer and Pease. The loss of these two men will be greatly felt. Nevertheless, the prospects for next year appear bright, as the rest of the team will return, and promising material was developed on the Freshman Squad.

Baseball at Wisconsin

BY COACH MAURICE KENT

Varsity baseball at Wisconsin has not had sufficient popularity and support. We have not had a winning baseball team in the Conference for a good many years. That in itself partly explains the average student's apathy, but it does not justify it. The interest in baseball as a sport is here. That is evidenced by the fact that there is probably more baseball played by the Wisconsin men than by those of any other Conference school. The Pan-Hellenic Baseball League of over thirty teams brings out close, intense interest and enthusiasm. In addition there is inter-college baseball; and there is inter-class baseball; there is boarding house baseball; and there are innumerable games between pick up teams. Morning noon and night the Lower Campus and the Camp Randall diamonds are being used for practice and games.

Varsity baseball needs the same type of interest and support. In the first place it needs more men out for the team. The squad that tries for the team each spring does not fully represent the baseball material and ability of Wisconsin. Many good players, players of experience, either do not come out for practice, or are lost through ineligibility.

Emanuel

Abrahamson

THE OUTFIELD Edler

Doyle

However, Wisconsin has some other handicaps to successful baseball. Facilities for early indoor practice are limited. The spring is generally cold and late. This puts our team two or three weeks behind most of the other Conference teams. Nevertheless, a wealth of material and enthusiastic student support could overcome these difficulties. Wisconsin can have winning baseball; Wisconsin can duplicate the conference championship team of 1912 if she is sufficiently determined to do it. Athletic Director Jones and the Athletic Council will, and are doing everything in their power to encourage the sport. The student body has a fine healthy interest in the game in general and there is no reason why that same interest and enthusiasm can not also be concentrated on turning out a winning Varsity team. There are enough good baseball players at Wisconsin to turn out winning teams in spite of the difficulties, and the satisfaction in the achievement will be all the greater.

ment will be all the greater.

This spring should mean better things. Wisconsin has an excellent schedule. Sixty men reported for indoor work shortly after Christman. This large turnout ought to mean a successful season, for the difficulties of weather and indoor facilities can be overcome when we have the men.

Review of the 1919 Baseball Season

BY MANAGER ALONZO L. WARD

At the beginning of the season, the prospects for a successful team were very promising. With the return of Cramer and Keyes from the service and the addition of several promising sophomores, a strong nucleus around which to build up a team was formed. Barlow filled the vacancy at shortstop caused by Sutton being laid out with an injured ankle. The hurling staff was strengthened by the addition of Miller and Williams.

The first few preliminary games were won with ease, yet they showed the lack of pitching material. Aside from that, the team played good ball under the excellent tutelage of the new coach, Maurice A. Kent, formerly of the University of Iowa. Poor weather conditions hindered the squad in preparation for the first conference game with Chicago. The game was lost 4-2. A week later the team went to Bloomington where they split even in a two game series with Indiana.

Scoring

Illinois 9-Wisconsin 4

The next three games were with Illinois, and we dropped them all. Although the team secured as many hits as Illinois, they lost many of the opportunities to score through careless base running and poor pinch hitting. The pitching staff was also weak. Up to the Indiana game Miller was going good but two games in three days seemed to have weakened him. The next game on the schedule brought us against Chicago again. We were leading up to the ninth inning when a home run by the Chicago captain brought in the two runs necessary for a Maroon victory. The team was about the best hitting aggregation in the Conference but the ability to shut out our opponents was lacking. The final home game of the season was with Notre Dame and was a complete victory for us. The Notre Dame pitcher who was already signed up by a big league team, was pounded for four runs while Williams held Notre Dame to two hits. It was the best game played at Camp Randall the whole season.

With the close of the season, Captain Keyes, Edler, Cramer, and Sutton ended their careers in college athletics. The prospects for next year are bright for there is plenty of excellent material. With Coach Kent and Captain-elect Emanuel at the helm we should have one of the best teams turned out by Wisconsin since the last time we won the Conference Championship.

The 1919 Outdoor Track Season

By Captain Allan Spafford

The outdoor track season of 1919, from the standpoint of victories won, was not a decided success. Coach Jones realized at the beginning of the season that he could not produce a team of the usual Wisconsin caliber with the material at hand, and devoted his entire efforts towards training his green men for future seasons.

Wisconsin did not seem to be as fortunate in recovering her old men from the service as were many of the other schools. Almost all of the point winners of 1918 and 1919 were still in service. Among these veterans were Andrews, Maleckar Crump, Dayton, Donaldson, and Endres, all of whom could have been counted on to score in any of the meets.

In addition, the team had to train without the use of a suitable track, the old one having been sacrificed for space required for the S. A. T. C. barracks, while the new track was far from completed. This made training, especially in the early part of the season, almost impossible, and the little material available was not given a chance to develop properly.

In spite of these handicaps, Coach Jones developed a team which would have won the Illinois and Chicago dual meets had it not been for weakness in one or two events.

With almost all of the men back for 1920, in addition to the return of the stars mentioned above, Wisconsin is bound to come back.

RESULTS OF THE INDOOR SEASON

Wisconsin 48—Notre Dame 38 Wisconsin 69—Northwestern 17 Finished third in the Conference meet

Review of 1920 Varsity Indoor Track Season

BY CAPTAIN ANDREWS

Capt. Andrews

Wisconsin's indoor track team, composed largely of new material, completed a fairly successful season, winning two dual meets, one with Notre Dame and one with Northwestern, and finishing third in the tenth annual indoor track and field meet, held at Evanston on March 20th.

The team journeyed to South Bend, Indiana to meet Notre Dame on February 21st in the first meet of the season. Notre Dame furnished considerable opposition in the twelve events, but Wisconsin succeeded in winning seven first places and tied for two others. Notre Dame piled up enough points from second and third places to make the final score 48 to 38. Captain Andrews won the low hurdles in the fast time of 5:3. Brothers and Dayton won the distance events handily, and Merrick won the pole vault with an 11 foot vault.

With track and field stars from the south, east, and west entered in the Illinois relay carnival on March 6, Wisconsin managed to make a creditable showing, winning two third places and one second. The two and four mile relay teams finished third, and Andrews won second place in the 75-yard high hurdles.

The dual meet with Northwestern held in the Armory annex on March 13th resulted in an easy victory for the Badgers by the over-whelming score of 69 to 17. Northwestern placed but six men and won only two first places. Dayton easily defeated DeSwarte, the Purple captain, in the mile run, and Crump, Brothers, and Meyers all placed ahead of him in the two mile event. Andrews again came through with a win in the low hurdles, and Sundt heaved the shot 40 feet, 2 inches.

Wisconsin captured third place in the conference meet at Patten Gymnasium, Evanston, with a total of 10½ points. Illinois won the meet, Michigan finishing second. No first places were won in this meet, but Andrews forced Carl Johnson of Michigan to break a conference record in the 60-yard hurdles. The time was 7.3-5 seconds. Crump won third in the two mile in the last 40 yards of the race. Spafford won third in the high hurdles. Kayser ran a fast race to place third in the 440. Wisconsin finished ahead of seven other conference schools.

Building the New Track

Wisconsin's new quarter mile track, modeled on the improved Olympic tracks will be one of the finest in the conference. It has been constructed at a cost of approximately six thousand dollars, and all of the best features of the excellent eastern tracks have been incorporated into its construction. The course is a quarter mile in length, with a straight-away on the east side of one hundred and fifty yards, and one on the west side in front of the concrete stands of one hundred and forty yards. This west straight-away is being constructed so that it may be extended to two hundred and twenty yards to accommodate the conference meet, which Wisconsin is petitioning for 1923.

The track is twenty-six feet wide on the straight-away, allowing for six hurdle lanes and seven dash lanes, three and a half yards in width. It is banked two inches toward the center on the straight course, and four inches on the curves. A four inch concrete curb inside and outside of the running track and flush with the top layer of cinders circles the entire course.

The life and spring in this cinder track is secured by the arrangement of the layers of cinders, clay, and rock, and an improved drainage system. The track is excavated to a depth of two feet and built up in a layer of coarse rock, coarse cinders, crushed cinders, and clay, and on top, a fine dressing of screened cinders rolled carefully.

The last conference meet was held here in 1913 but because of the lack of proper track facilities, Wisconsin has not petitioned since. At the next meeting of the conference heads, however, Wisconsin will place her bid for the meet three years from this spring.

The first meet on the new track will be with Illinois May 14, 1920, but the formal inauguration will not take place till the spring of 1921.

Review of 1919 Championship Cross Country Season

The opening of the school year in the Fall of '19 found the Wisconsin cross-country runners with a good start on the road toward the conference champion-ship. Among the foremost veterans in the field were Captain Burr, Crump, Brothers, W. Ramsey, and Meyers, all of whom had had one or more years of competition to their credit. Taylor, Dennis, Gombar, and Powell completed the squad.

The Minnesota meet, held on Homecoming day, November I, brought Wisconsin her laurels. In this meet, Wisconsin showed her superiority by placing three men ahead of Minnesota's first man, Captain Burr having a 500-yard lead at the finish, with the time of twenty-eight minutes and twenty-three seconds. Brothers nosed Wilder, the Gopher captain, out of third place at the tape.

The second dual meet was held at Ames, Iowa. Here Wisconsin was beaten, but not discouraged, as the meet was close and the Badgers hoped with a little more training, to come back strong in the Conference. On November 22, the date of the Conference meet at Columbus, Ohio, Ames was again victorious by placing first with a score of 38, leaving Wisconsin a close second with 78. Ramsey was the first Wisconsin man to finish. As Ames is outside of the Conference, this gave the conference title to Wisconsin.

Review 1919 Tennis Season

Tennis has met many reverses at Wisconsin. The war played havoc with the best outlook Wisconsin had had for years. Last spring competition was again resumed, and dual matches were played with Northwestern and Chicago. Although Taylor won the only match of the season at Northwestern, all were hotly contested.

Gotfredson, playing in his last year, and Taylor, comprised the team sent to the conference at Chicago. They were defeated by Michigan in both singles and doubles, mainly through the phenominal playing of Westbrook. Michigan succeeded in defeating Minnesota in both events for the championship.

Prospects for 1920

BY CAPT. ELECT TAYLOR

Prospects for a winning team this year are particularly bright. Brorby, who before the war played with Nielson, has returned. Taylor will probably play a better and steadier game than last spring. Fanning, who played in doubles against Chicago, and Cox, are back. Other formidable strikers are found in the personnel of the Tennis Club, and all will furnish keen competition for team honors. Tennis is a major sport at eastern colleges, and there is no reason why it should not greatly increase in popularity, importance, and success at Wisconsin.

Indoor practice began in March, and, radically speaking, if indications are not valueless, the enthusiasm pervading the campus at that time pointed to a successful season.

TO phase of university life has felt the influence of the New Era more than that great and all-absorbing whirlpool of energy, Activities. And nowhere in that vast realm of student endeavor has the new spirit been felt more keenly than in Student Self-Government. The time has passed when the establishment of the right to govern themselves was a pioneer achievement for students. The Age of Introduction, the Age of Experimentation, have passed; the New Era has brought with it the Age of Improvement. The broad fundamental principles have been thoroughly established; but there yet remain many details that need strengthening before the structure of Student Self-Government will be complete and adequate. To satisfy the requirements of an exacting and ever-changing period many amendments are being added to produce a durable whole. The Student-Faculty Committee of the College of Engineering—the sincere effort of the Student Senate to destroy the pernicious characteristics of hazingthese are both manifestations of the constructive spirit of the New Era. Time alone can tell whether these changes are of permanent good; but it is the sincere hope of every student of this University that, through the influence of the spirit of the New Era, the Age of Improvement will merge into the Age of Practical Perfection.

The Proposed Memorial Union Building

"To make Wisconsin a better place for students"

The building will fill a long-felt want at the University as a place devoted entirely to student interests. It will form the nucleus of all student activity, for it will contain student publication offices, lounging and reading rooms, bowling and billiard rooms, a cafeteria and commons, a trophy room, a memorial rotunda commemorating the service of Wisconsin men in the World War, club rooms for all student organizations, and a theater with a seating capacity of twelve hundred. It is to be built by the students and alumni of the University at a cost of one million dollars.

Who's Who at Wisconsin
PUBLISHED BY WHITE SPADES

Murphy

Crownhart

The work of compiling a "Who's Who at Wisconsin", the first book of its kind on record, was undertaken by White Spades, honorary junior-senior society, in 1919. As originally planned, its purpose was to promote interest in the activities in which the students engaged and to make a record of what they have done and are doing.

Early in 1920 the staff was reorganized, the plan of the book was enlarged to include several new features, and an edition of fifteen hundred copies was printed.

The book is modeled after the national "Who's Who" and contains sections devoted to prominent members of the faculty, alumni who entered in Who's Who in America, a student department devoted to the most active members of the junior and senior classes, a department devoted to alumni from 1915 to 1920, and a What's What at Wisconsin, which includes a record of university events, organizations, and activities.

If the present book meets with favor, it is the intention of White Spades to publish a similar volume periodically.

Review of the Season

Wisconsin's biggest year in dramatic work shows a total of twelve student productions, one faculty play, and six special engagements under the auspices of student organizations. The prospects of owning the new theater which will be a part of the Memorial Union Building has been an incentive to greater interest. Several productions were given as benefits for the Memorial Union Fund.

Three new dramatic organizations were started during the year. Pi Epsilon Delta, national honorary dramatic fraternity, was founded by members of Edwin Booth, Haresfoot, Red Domino, and Twelfth Night. The Curtain Club was organized by members of the faculty. The Playwriters, a group of students interested in writing plays centering around life at the University, held their first meetings in November.

The Haresfoot play, "Mary's Lamb", played seven performances on its road trip and returned to Madison for three showings at the Fuller Opera House. Union Vodvil increased the number of its performances from two to three, and at that was unable to accommodate the number of students who wanted to see the "Twelve Big Acts".

The Joint Production was reinstated as one of the leading events of the season's calendar, "The Marriage of Kitty" playing to a capacity house at the Fuller on January 23. "Cheating Cheaters" proved to be one of the most enjoyable plays ever produced at the university.

Among the other events of special interest were: "Behind a Watteau Picture", by Red Domino; "Three Pills in a Bottle" and "Will o' the Wisp", by Twelfth Night; "The Importance of Being Ernest", by the Curtain Club; the Edwin Booth open meeting; and two plays given in French and two given in Spanish under the direction of members of the faculty. The Senior class play will be part of the Commencement program.

The 1919-20 dramatic season found Edwin Booth with the largest membership in its history. This was due to the return of a number of men from service and the fact that so much excellent material appeared at tryouts.

The activities of the club centered around the Joint Production, "The Marriage of Kitty", the engagement of a professional company which played "The Doll's House", and "Hedda Gabler", under the auspices of the Edwin Booth, Red Domino, and Twelfth Night societies, the Edwin Booth Speciality Dance, and the Open Meeting. Preparations were made to observe the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the society which will take place next year.

Members took leading parts in Union Vodvil, the Haresfoot production, the Junior Play, and the French plays, and held many important executive positions in connection with these and other events. The second prize in Union Vodvil was won by Ray Holcombe and Clarence Schubert; the third prize went to a speciality number in which Fred Bickel made his last appearance as an entertainer.

Forensic Season

1919-1920

The revival of interest in all lines of Forensic activity during the year 1919-1920 has been most gratifying. The debates have been prepared with unusual care and while Wisconsin has not been the winner in all inter-collegiate events, she can well be proud of her representatives and the standard of their work. The local inter-society debates and other forensic contests have aroused the keenest interest and have all drawn enthusiastic audiences and the subjects treated in both debates and oratorical contests have been matters of vital importance to the thinking public. This wholesome interest in the problems of the present day points to still better standards for all collegiate and inter-collegiate forensic events and Wisconsin can be depended upon to contribute her full share in all such contests.

THE YEAR'S PROGRAM

Debates were held at every meeting during the year, and were interesting and varied. At all times questions of national interest were discussed; some of the subjects debated were the legality of strikes and lockouts, compulsory military training, labor representation on industrial boards of directors, Japanese immigration, the Irish question, and the Kansas Industrial Court Law.

In addition to the debates, round-table discussions were held on Berger's admission to Congress, and the Mexican and Shantung situations. At another meeting the Treaty of Versailles was formally presented, and the Article Ten, equal voting power, and the Shauntung reservations were discussed at great length. Another interesting meeting on the year's program was one at which the club resolved itself into a mock Republican National Convention, with all the fiery nomination speeches and uncontrolled applause that characterizes a real national convention.

YEAR'S PROGRAM

The year 1919-1920 was one of the most successful forensic years this university has seen in many years, and Hesperia came in for her full share of the program. The debates held during the year were all of them of the type that develop powerful debaters and a peppy and enthusiastic club. Every meeting contained something worth while, and every program was replete with up-to-date topics and discussions. The single biggest thing of the year was of course the winning of the Joint Debate from Athena, and the wresting from her of the forensic championship of the university.

THE YEAR'S PROGRAM

The Joint Debate, in which Athenae was a contestant, was by far the biggest thing on the year's program. Debates and round-table discussions were held at almost every meeting, though, and some of the subjects taken up were Russian economic aspects, the Shantung question, the Fiume question, intervention in Mexico, the formation of an Anglo-American alliance, the good-roads movement, the advisability of the eight-hour day, and Minimum Wage laws.

THE YEAR'S PROGRAM

Interesting debates and many of them have characterized the meetings of the Agric Lit this year. A new plan of organization, whereby the membership of the club is divided into six teams, each team debating against the others to decide the club championship, has been very successful, and the competition developed has resulted in some very thorough debates. The club hopes that next year the Hill society not engaged in the Joint Debate will accept the Agric Lit's challenge to an inter-society debate.

THE YEAR'S PROGRAM

This year marks the tenth anniversary of the founding of Pythia. To celebrate that fact the meetings this year have been full of interesting and live discussions on current topics. The keen competition resulting in Miss Borcher's selection as the Pythia representative in the Junior "Ex" is but a symbol of the spirit that has prevailed throughout the year. Incidentally, the fact that Pythia's representative won the right to represent Wisconsin in the N. O. L. added no small feather to Pythia's cap.

THE YEAR'S PROGRAM

Like the other literary societies, Castalia has had a complete and crowded year. Every meeting has seen a live and well-worked-out debate on some interesting subject, and Castalia has done her full share in combining with the other societies in boosting forensics generally. Although Castalia was defeated by Pythia in the oratorical contests, she clearly demonstrated her right to forensic honors by winning from Pythia in the Girl's Joint Debate by a unanimous decision.

Regimental Review

Spring 1919

FIRST BATTALION AND BAND

SECOND BATTALION AND REGIMENTAL OFFICERS

THIRD BATTALION

WITH the formation of a special section devoted entirely to Music, the 1921 Badger shows its appreciation of the extent to which musical activity in the university has developed. In the past few years the number of people interested in Music has increased steadily, and the standard of their performance has risen correspondingly, so that today this university may well be proud of its representatives in the art of Music.

In company with the other activities, Music has felt the influence of the New Era. This year there have been more musical programs by the different organizations than ever before. The university bands have regained their pre-war strength of two full regimental bands, and they have revived the Winter Concert Series. The bands have also gone with the football team, and carried the spirit of Wisconsin into foreign fields. The men's Glee Club has had a very full year's program, for in addition to giving the Prom Concert and several other local concerts, they have visited nearly every city of any size in Wisconsin. The girl's musical organizations have been forced to stay in Madison, but their performances here have been a source of pleasure to the university. Altogether it has been an exceedingly profitable year for music, and it is hoped to be that the New Era promises a repetition of the success and interest of this year.

The University Regimental Bands, after a period of depression during the war, are rapidly getting back to their pre-war standard. The First Regimental Band, consisting of forty eight musicians, and which is essentially a concert band, has revived the Winter Concert Series; the second band is mainly a training organization.

When a man has played with either band faithfully for two years, he is entitled to a bronze fob, and if he has played for three years, he receives a silver fob. When he has completed four years of faithful service, he is given a gold key, engraved with his name, rank and special honors. There have never been more than five or six gold keys granted in one year, and each man who has earned one considers it one of his most valued possessions. The men who will receive gold keys this year are:

Dedication of the Lincoln Terrace—On June 24, 1919, Alumni day, occurred the dedication of the Lincoln Terrace. This was one of the most impressive of all of the Commencement ceremonies. Speeches by prominent alumni and friends of the university, and imposing exercises marked Wisconsin's welcome to her soldiers, sailors, and marines.

The Governor's Welcome—Gov. Phillipp delivered the state's welcome at the Lincoln Dedication. This picture was taken from the central archway of Main Hall, looking out across the terrace.

The Procession—The women of the Senior class, in cap and gown, and the Junior and Sophomore women formed in procession and marched through the arch erected before the terrace.

Bonus Students "Fall In" for Pay—November 20, 1919, saw the first "bread-line" of the university's 1200 soldier-students lined up in front of the Bursar's office for their first month's pay. Wisconsin is one of the few states that offers an educational bonus to ex-soldiers.

Commerce Student's Smoker—For the first time in university history, the commerce freshmen got together with the upperclassmen in the State Capitol building for a smoker-mixer. Harry E. Benedict, '14, assistant cashier of the National City Bank and assistant to Frank Vanderlip, was the principal speaker.

Activities of the Forest Products Laboratory

The Sand-Bag Test—This seventeen-foot aileron was designed, built, and tested by the Forest Products Laboratory. It was loaded with sandbags, placed on wooden strips, giving a condition similiar to that taking place in actual flight.

Small Drum Box-testing Machine —This machine was designed by the Forest Products Laboratory for the testing of wooden boxes. As the machine rotates, the boxes are subjected to knocks such as they would receive during ordinary shipment.

Bending Artillery Wheel Rims—Prior to bending the wheel rim the wood is steamed in order to soften it. It is then placed in the above machine and the ends are drawn up slowly by chains as the piece is bent around to conform to the arc of the wheel. The ends are then locked and the wood is allowed to dry.

Designing Aeroplane Propellers—The Forest Products Laboratory did a great deal of work in experimentation with aeroplane propellers to determine the proper manufacturing processes, the kind of material used, and the influence of weather. The work of the laboratories, while unusual and in many causes unique, is not very often placed in the "lime-light" of activities.

Interesting Employees

Upper left—"Cap" Isabel: Guardian of the canoes and entire crew of the good ship "Cardinal". Upper right—"Pat": Pat Clerkin, friend of all the engineers and an indispensable adjunct of the Engineering building. Lower left—John Bolzt: Twenty-seven years in the service and the old-service and the oldest employee of the university is the record of this custodian of the Observatory. Lower right—C. H. Batty: Head of the janitorial staff, better known as the tickettaker at the Candy Shop.

State College Editors Organize—The editors of Wisconsin college dailies, weeklies, and annuals met as guests of the university, November 28-30 to organize the State Collegiate Press Association. Representatives of all Wisconsin's college publications discussed problems of interest in the series of meetings, and adopted the constitution of the new association.

Student Volunteer Convention—Wisconsin was represented by eighty-three delegates at the Des Moines Convention held December 31-January 4. Over 7000 students from all over the world were there to hear addresses by such men as Dr. John R. Mott, Bishop MacDowell, and others. It was the general aim of the convention to aid in the development of Christian leadership among the students of this generation.

Wisconsin's Newest Winter Sport—The presence of a number of genuine Norwegians in the university was responsible for the organization of the "Badger Ski Club" and the introduction of skiing into the category of Wisconsin's winter sports. A wooden slide was constructed on Muir Knoll and several interesting meets were staged here. Representatives of the club participated in contests at Cary, Illinois, and Chippewa Falls. It is planned to enlarge the scope of the club's activities next year. The local organization has been taken into the International Ski Association of America.

"George" in action!—George Martin, star skater and leader in winter activities, is president of the Badger Ski Club.

Jumping in Perfect Form!—Hans Gude, winner of second place at the Gary Meet, is one of the most graceful jumpers in the club.

"Over the Top"!—A hundred feet above the lake, poised in mid-air! That is the real thrill that Wisconsin skiiers get when they "take off" from the top of Muir Knoll jump.

Double Jump—To accomplish this jump professional skill is necessary. Badger skiiers put on several of these at the Annual Ice Carnival.

A "Co-ed Professional"—One of the drawing cards at the Ice Carnival was the exhibition by Wisconsin's unknown "professional".

Stranded!—Who hasn't found himself two miles out at sunset when the wind dies down? Lots of times it isn't so bad as it sounds, and this is one of those times.

"Loaf and Smoke"—The Engineers lost no opportunity to score the other colleges in their annual St. Patrick's Day parade, and "L. and S." was converted into a "Loaf and Smoke" trio of "tea-hounds".

Last Rites of the Law School—The funeral procession of the defunct Law Shop occupied a large share of the parade and drew tears from the many mourners.

The "Book-keeper's" Goat—The Commerce goat, captured early in the day, was conspicuously present in the procession.

"St. Patrick was an Engineer, he was, he was!"—The venerable saint himself created a sensation when he rode in his antique coach, dispensing smiles on the adoring "plumbers".

Tractor and Spreader

Convocation Speakers

Pres. M. L. Burton—Pres. Burton was the principal speaker at the opening convocation of the all-university religious conference, held March 4-7. He pointed out the necessity of religion in the university as well as in the individual life.

Edward S. Jordan—Edward S. Jordan, '05, president of the Jordan Motor company, spoke at the vocational conference. He delivered a fiery address in which he levelled several sharp thrusts at the "tea-dancers".

Shailer Mathews—Dean Mathews, of the Chicago University divinity school, spoke at the religious conference. He is a man of national prominence—an educator and author.

Wilfred T. Grenfell—Dr. Grenfell. famous Labrador surgeon and missionary, spoke in Music Hall on March 18. He told of his work in the far north and the medical work among the natives of Labrador.

Canoeing on "Langdon River"—An actual picture of the flood that occurred on Langdon Street last May when a regular cloudburst turned the peaceful street into a second Mississippi. Canoes and bathers disported gaily so that the photographer could "snap" them.

"Painting the Town Red"—The home-coming bonfire, which is a vital part of every home-coming celebration, was bigger and brighter—and hotter—this year than in any previous year. Every old "grad" and ex-service man got a real thrill from the best and first real home-coming celebration.

"The Little International"—The university stock show, held March 13 in the stock pavillion, was an exhibition of prize cattle, fancy riding and fine horses. It was conducted by the Saddle and Sirloin Club, and aroused considerable enthusiasm and interest. Prizes for the best cattle, sheep, and hogs were given, and the most successful equestrians in the university were selected to exhibit.

Mortar Board is the honorary senior women's society to which election is made at the end of the junior year on the basis of scholarship, service, and womanliness. The organization tries to promote and support worthy activities in the University and has as its especial duty an interest in the cooperative house. Mortar Board gives an annual scholarship of one hundred dollars to a university woman. Money for this is raised at the May Day Supper.

Interfraternity Council

The general fraternity situation at Wisconsin at the present time is excellent. There is a feeling of harmony and cooperation between fraternities themselves, and between them and the entire personnel of the University. The Interfraternity Council during the past year has maintained an active, constructive policy directed towards the wholehearted and effective support of all university activities, the entertainment of visiting teams in interscholastic athletic meets, the establishment of more fraternities in the University, the maintenance of the highest possible standards of scholarship, and the perpetuation of that atmosphere of wholesome and earnest good-fellowship under whose genial influence men and women of Wisconsin become imbued with healthy ideals of citizenship and of service to mankind.

The Badger Club

MEMBERSHIP

The membership of the club is open to all men and women students of the University. Two hundred active members form the nucleus for the work of the club.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Badger Club is democratic good-fellowship. This is accomplished by the Sunday evening "get-togethers" in which men and women students gather at the Y parlors to spend the evening in the enjoyment of music, friendly intercourse, light refreshments, and a short talk by "Dad" Wolf or some other congenial speaker. The club occasionally indulges in a special good time, such as the Merrill Springs sleigh-ride, or the Christmas party given for fifty Madison children.

Believing that there exists during our time cause for lack of genuine understanding between the English speaking countries of the World, many sources of inharmony which have given rise in several instances to potential controversy based often upon irrevelant considerations or mere lack of intimate contact; and believing that the peace of the World may be made in a measure more secure through the operation of material and spiritual bonds of sympathy and understanding between all of the peoples of the World:do associate ourselves into a club having for its purpose the creation of a medium for the exchange of ideas and points of view between ourselves and other branches of the English speaking race, and the promotion of intelligent, frank, informal discussion as a means of fostering that solidarity of states which can be firmly rooted only upon those principles of liberty and democracy which govern free peoples.

The French House was organized the summer session of 1918 under the direction of the Romance Language Department. The purpose of the House is to furnish a French atmosphere and promote the acquiring of a speaking knowledge of the French language. Instructors of the department and French scholars who live at the House make it possible to have the best training in conversation. The work of the department and the assistance of those interested have made the French House a decided success.

The Alumni Association

NO ACCIDENT

An alumni organization always ready to serve, with a publication always full of information about the University and its alumni, IS NO ACCIDENT. It exists because there are alumni who consider their University training a trust entailing obligation.

ORGANIZATION IS NECESSARY

📂 It is axiomatic that the alumni can work efficiently as alumni only through organization. The graduate who willingly stays out of the alumni organization not only does not contribute to the success of the organization but is a drag upon its efficiency.

It is a well recognized fact that one of the most important factors in promoting the welfare of a university—particularly a state university—is the intelligent interest and support of its alumni. Every member of the General Alumni Association is a center of intelligent interest in the University.

LOYALTY

There is only one test of loyalty—that is service. Hundreds can do more by cooperation than thousands working each by himself, and do many things which thousands could not do at all without co-operation. To make your work count, you must associate yourself with those who are doing things for the Universty.

INSPIRATION

The years you have spent at the University have been pleasant and profitable; their memory will be a constant inspiration; the friendships you have made will bring you cheer and give you courage to face whatever the future may have in store for you.

ADVANTAGES OF ASSOCIATION

It substitutes organized alumni loyalty for unorganized good will.

Efficiency—It makes possible concerted and effective action by the alumni. Economy—It insures the maximum of efficiency for every outlay of energy. (2) (3)

Opportunity—It makes it possible for YOU to have a definite, positive and appreciable share (4) in the work.

 (5) Equality—It gives your individual effort the same efficiency of that of any other alumnus.
 (6) For the average alumnus this Association furnishes the ONLY OPPORTUNITY to make his individual effort count in behalf of the University.

WHAT THE ASSOCIATION HAS DONE

It has brought about effective concerted action in behalf of the University.

(2) It has fearlessly told the truth about the University.

(3) It has initiated many good movements and supported all good measures for the betterment and advancement of the University.

(4) It has taken a dignified, powerful, non-partisan attitude in all important legislative proceedings concerning University matters. The Legislative Committee of the Alumni Association has been received with respect and listened to with attention by all meetings of the legislature in recent years.

(5). It has enabled to behalf of the University. It has enabled faculty, students, administrative officers, and graduates to work together in

(6) It has kept track of graduates. (The largest directory company in the world says that the General Alumni Association has the most nearly complete and accurate list of graduates in the United States.)

(7) It has built up the most efficient college employment bureu for students in the United States. (This is according to a government inspector).

(8) It is always on the alert to help graduates.(9) It keeps track of and in touch with the local alumni clubs, and thus places recent graduates in touch with representative alumni in more than forty important cities of the United States maintaining local U. W. clubs.

(10) It is the one opportunity for co-operative effort by our graduates in behalf of the University of Wisconsin.

COST

The General Alumni Association offers you membership for a fraction of a cent a day. This membership entitles you to a copy of the Alumni Magazine each month without additional charge. Though the work may continue without you, can you afford to let it? The annual membership fee, including a year's subscription to the Alumni Magazine is but $2.00. The life membership, including a life subscription to the Alumni Magazine is $50. The most efficient alumni organizations are maintained by life memberships. Graduates are, therefore, particularly urged to take life membership if possible. The loyalty of Wisconsin graduates to their University is well known. It is our desire, and we trust your wish, that each and every class show itself 100% loyal, and we, therefore, ask your active co-operation in making the showing of the Alumni Association not merely a showing of individuals, but an enrollment of your class as a unit. Do your part! Join the association today.

MAY WE NOT

In the words of President Wilson, "may we not" enroll you on our list of members and receive the encouragement of your active support? Please join now.

John L. Childs was a member of the Iron Cross; Member of Delta Sigma Rho: Intercollegiate Debater; Member of the Student Conference; Editor-in-chief of the Daily Gardinal President of the Y. M. C. A. Commencement Orator: Secretary of the International Y. M. C. A. in Student Association work 1911-1916; went to Peking for Wisconsin in China, 1916.

Miss Abbey Shaw Mayhew was mistress of Chadbourne Hall; director of physical education for girls until 1999.

JOHN L. CHILDS '11

MISS ABBEY SHAW MAYHEW

Wisconsin in China is an organized attempt to realize concretely the great ideal of the University SERVICE. It is an all-university enterprise supported by the men and women of the student body and of the faculty. The mens' work consists in maintaining in Peking a Wisconsin in China head-quarters in charge of a Wisconsin graduate, John L. Childs. Here Childs is interpreting concretely to Chinese young men, especially students, the Wisconsin spirit of Service, and is promoting social service programs and training young men for a new China. The womens' work consists in supporting in Shanghai Miss Abbey Mayhew and the program for the religious and physical education of Chinese women. In 1920 the men raised $3000 for the Peking work; the women raised $1300 for the Shangha, work.

Scene Section--Memories of Wisconsin

The broad expanse of lawn stretched away toward the golden sunset! The haunt of swallows at twilight—Quiet as a nun, breathless with adoration—

The drive, bordered with flowers—A riot of perfume and beauty! Oh, be still, my fluttering heart.

Spring on our lovely campus! All nature seems to smile—Every bird on the boughs sings to my heart and soul—The clouds have faces—The trees of the wood, the waving grass, and the peeping flowers have grown intelligent.

The libe! How I have glorified in your quaint nooks and corners—in your kindly sanctuaries—I shall always dream of you in the long, long night—

Ah, little shop! Where tiny feet have twinkled—You have fostered our souls, and brought to us the peace that passeth all understanding.

The sequestered path along the shore—where I used to wander, light-hearted, in the glory of morning.

Home! The Place of Peace—The shelter from all injury and doubt—I can see your vine-elad walls, your dear little muddy doorstep—

Dear old Main Hall! Where I've whiled away the dreamy hours—How I hate to leave you! And my heart is aching, aching—

Editorial Wails—Editor Poems by Students

We take this opportunity to call the attention of the reader to the various Student Conferences which occur from time to time for his or her benefit. The average student is too much concerned with his own petty affairs; and a sense of humor, if nothing else, should make him realize the comic figure he cuts. But, alas! the sense of humor is missing! With all earnestness he vents his energy and enthusiasm on track meets and football games! It would be amusing, if it were not so pitiful, to see a supposedly intelligent student body shouting and raving and pleading for a "touchdown" when a stricken world cries aloud for sane, constructive thinking in the solution of its problems. We earnestly hope that the 'Lit' staff is not alone in its support of activities that go to cultivate the intellect, and not the brute enthusiasms.

"In the spring a young man's fancy"—is apt to go hopelessly astray! It is easy to follow the line of least resistance, and fall into an intellectual stupor. But we should at least try to be something more than mere healthy young animals. Remember, an afternoon indolently spent lying around on some pier may satisfy the wants of a dullard, but let us be grateful that we have among us some few who prefer the Library. The attainment of culture is not to be found in idle association with the grosser element of our student body, but in contact with the intellectual aristocracy,—among whom we hope we may, without undue pretension, include ourselves. "A word to the wise—."

It is with great satisfaction that the 'Lit' staff announces and endorses the New Forum which has recently become established in our University. This organization will fill a need long felt-in our community. It will afford the undergraduate an opportunity to become acquainted with the current intellectual and social movements which promise to overthrow the outworn creeds of present-day society. It is another step in the direction of progress. Aside from the personal gratification which we get from seeing our suggestions and pleas materialize, we rejoice that the student body now has a chance to emerge from its intellectual rut and perchance join the isolated few who have heretofore carried the banner of culture and progress. It may be that with the newly-opening vista, and the expanded mental horizon, the student body will come to understand and appreciate what we and a handful of loyal supporters have always stood for-until now we have been hopelessly misunderstood, not through popular malevolence, but because the masses have not had the mental capacity to comprehend our ideals. We now rejoice in the dawning of a new day.

THE DEATH OF A LITTLE CHILD

A breathless, prayerful hush,— (Ah! bitter 'tears down sunken cheeks are are streaming!)
The dim half-light
Spends itself on the wall
Unresponsive—

Outside, the April rain
Dashes its myriad waters on the earth
In vain!
The uncertain light
Is fading, fading, timelessly!

Charles C. Manson

A PRAYER

I know not
What may be my destiny on earth,
But, God ,if thou are just,
I know that priestly lies are powerless
To violate my trust!

I know not what thou art, or what I am, O unseen Power!
But there is that with me
Which naught can overthrow—
Calmly
I disregard the clamors of the world,
And with a firm aloofness
Await the day of my exoneration!

Eve Knower

SUMMER MORNING

The flowers laugh, rejoicing in their fragrance Above,
Sunbeams glint on jeweled leaves.
The mellow-throated lark
Is pouring out his soul in ecstasy—
(How silent is the river!)
Tingling with joy, I inhale
The sweetness of a thousand opening buds.

O, 'tis wondrous sweet to be alive!
See, how lovely is the sky!
The earth,
In glorious canopy,
Bids me welcome, and hails me as companion.
Ah, yes, 'tis sweet to be alive!

Paul C. Claffin

AUTUMN THOUGHTS

Wind on the lake, Coming in fitful starts,— Overhead Misty, gray clouds from the north, Calling to life and love, and love! (But where are the snows of yesteryear?) Ah, heart of me!

Elsie Gluck

HONEYSUCKLE

(Re-printed by special request of the Author).

He smelled the honeysuckle's breath, fresh sweetened by the showers; He said, ''I'll come and pick it when those buds have turned to flowers And the honey makes a treasure for the the bees".

But now he's lying dead beneath the poppy fields of Flanders; But now the vine, sweet-scented in the summer's warmth, meanders In aimless vagrancy among the trees.

Interviews With Professors

CARL RUSSELL FISH

I had heard so much of Carl Russell Fish that his name had become a byword. In fact, I often had used it as a byword. It sauntered into his office at a half gallop and broke into a trot. "Good morning, Fish", I whinneyed.
"You bet it is," said Carl rustling slightly.
"Can you answer a few questions for me?" I asked interrogatively.
"Sure" said he loquaciously as he saw the point of the joke.

"Sure" said he loquaciously as he saw the point of the joke.
"What kind of a necktie do you like best?" I purred.
"A four in hand is worth two in the bush," said he, quoting scripture.

I thought that if he was going to be jocose I would be jackass, so I mumbled,

"Did you ever was you can you should you have been" "No," said he passing the question off silently.

"When you were in England did you see the British Isle"? "Isle say I did," he answered pointedly.

Puns have always been of utmost distaste to me. My old negro mammy used to croon to me, "Men who make puns are like wanton boys who put coppers on the railroad tracks."

I said to him, "Why was Paharoh's daughter like a banker"? "Why", said he attempting to answer my question, "Because she found a little prophet in the rushes on the bank". I went out on my bicycle, making impersonations of Lincoln.

PROFESSOR ELWELL

I wandered into the office of the no-accountant in order to account for some things I had heard about his course.

The professor was completely surrounded by ink bottles and quill pens—so completely in fact that I could see nothing of him. I noted that he had a neat white suit on, so 'I spoke of it.

"Professor Elwell', said I, "I hear that you only give two credits for accounting A. No. 1.

"If you don't like it, get out'! he bristled.

"I have heard', said I "that 90 per cent of your classes are flunked if for no other reason than that their marks are below 50''.

''If you don't like it, get out''! he wrestled.

"Would you just as soon tell-

"If you don't like it, get out!" he bowlegged. "Would you just as soon—"
"If you don't like it, get out"! he assumed.

"Would you just as-"You are an ass", said he, tearing his handkererchief into twenty pieces, each exactly the same color.

"Oh, get out", I said coyly.
"You get out of here", he whispered scarcely above a whisper.

Having gotten all the information I obtained, I put on my hat for about an hour and went off contralting opii from Grieg.

PROFESSOR MORTIMER

I approached the eminent agronomist in his laboratory class. He was firing questions in a somewhat fiery way at the members of the class, all of whom had red hair.

"I may look hard, but you get down under my skin, and I'm as soft as a baby", he thundered as he threw bits of wheat around the room and made a rye face.

I did not want to chaf him so asked him if I could stay around and get his ideas on farming. 'I would just as leaf you stalk around the room', said he, running his fingers through his hair, which looked like a wheat field in a wind storm.

"I concede that the practice of fall seeding should supersede spring sowing", he said, breaking the pun somewhat seedily, and gently tossing corncobs at a student of twenty summers and fifteen winters (having spent five winters in the sunny land of Florida.)

I concluded that he perhaps knew something about agronomy if he only would open his mooth (French for mouth), but that he was trifling with me. I left him as he was, sitting in a sitting posture and singing the old fold song—
"Every morning I counts the beads,
And then I goes out and plants the seeds;

Spring is coming yet no doubt. (Colloquial for undoubtedly)

PROFESSOR E. AYLESWORTH ROSS

He was reading the "Wall Street Journal" and muttering to himself. His smooth-shaven He was reading the "Wall Street Journal" and muttering to himself. His smooth-shaven face, his snow white hair, his placid countenance, all betokened rest and calm. "Sit down!" he barked gently. "What the—whatdyawant"?

"Your views, sir, on the industrial unrest".

"Ha! Unrest? Slavery, you should say. Man's inhumanity to man makes—oh, well, you wouldn't understand that, anyhow. You're a bourgeois".

"Is that so"! I retorted hotly. "You're a—" Reason came to me. I could not hurt him. He was so small. "Go on sir", I requested.

"Do you know, young man, whither we are drifting? Unescapably into an International-schafteauguemeemblen."!

echateauquemcombien''!

No"! I breathed softly. It was incredible.

"Yes, if not into an uberplatzstellung! Hah—that touches you, does it''?
It did. It certainly did. "And what then"? I gasped.
He smiled. "Ah, what then! Perhaps even into a ventrienspiciendo! Do you follow me'?

No. Leculd not. Into a—no, it was too much. Much much too much. But he was speak-No—I could not. Into a—no, it was too much. Much, much too much. But he was speaking. I could hear him. He said, "Do you read the Milwaukee Leader"?

"Well, no. I don't exactly read it. But, whenever—"

"No matter", he interrupted. "It is beyond you. But if you are truly seeking the light—that light that lights—" His voice trailed away abstractedly. He was dreaming. Great

His voice trailed away abstractedly. He was dreaming. Great powerful dreams. A gentle snore broke forth. I had one question I burned to ask him. I wanted to know where he bought his neckties. But instead, I tiptoed out of the Presence.

PROFESSOR A. B. HALL

We found the great man wrapped in thought. His long bony frame was sunk in the depths of a Morris Chair. His sombre waistcoat of yellow plush glared menacingly at me.

"Sir, I have come to interview you", I timorously stated.

He jumped to his feet, to his two feet. Standing erect upon both of them in a standing position; he confronted me. "I loathe publicity"! he cried. "I shall not be interviewed! Sit

I sat down.

"What do you want to know? Einstein's theory? The presidential possibilities? The truth about Daisy Ashford? The elements of Jewish Prudence? Unaccustomed as I am—" "Someone mentioned a crystal lake to me", I suggested suggestively. "Ah, the crystal lake! Nestling in the green translucent hills like a carbundle on the me—like a carbuncle in a jade setting; its rippling waters flashing in the sunlight; its feathered fouls flitting frantically to and fro! What a picture, what a vision, what a sight—why darnitall, you've heard this all before! Haven't you''?

'Well, er, I couldn't hear it often enough''.

His long angular countenance lighted in a touching and wonderful smile. "You gratify me beyond measure", he said. "Never since the day I had lunch in the Flappa house have I been so gratified! Did I hear you ask me my views on Woman? Woman—what a tender fragrance, what a radiance that magical word evolves! How often—"

"ARNOLD, come here"! It was a voice. It was a feminine voice. The great man.left the room. So did I.

PROFESSOR OTTO

I rolled into his office on my hands and feet disguised as an automobile.

"High ho", I continued, having said nothing so far.

"You look like an auto, darn it", said he aware of the fact that he had the hot end of his cigarette in his mouth.

'Well, I ought to, Otto, if my opinion counts for aught'', raising each one of both my shoulders and sitting on the ottoman.

''It is either raining or it is not raining'', said he winking his eye towards me. ''You bet that's right'', I agreed.

"And, it is raining; therefore it's not raining", said he becoming deaf and dumb. "I should live so long", said I showing that I understood his technical terms. "Well then, what are you arguing about", he persuaded excellently.

I thought to catch him with some philosophical questions so I said "When was Napoleon born''?

He did not answer immediately, and then I discovered why—he was not even in the room.

DEAN GOODNIGHT

"Go right in", said the stenographer, "He's not busy". I grasped the knob firmly, and threw open the door.

The great man was gazing intently at a list of alleged malefactors, a look of supreme sadness in his eyes. He did not even notice me.

'I always play fair with the boys, but they just will get themselves kicked out', he muttered to himself.

'Pardon me, Dean Goodnight—''

He looked up quickly.

"Well", he chuckled in his gruff, good natured way, "What'll it be"?
"Why, I'd like to know what you think about gambling in fraternity houses".
"Personally I think it's a good thing. It keeps the boys at home, out of mischief, and away from the malign influence of the sororities. It also teaches them good sportsmanship, and makes them appreciate home life'

You know, Mr. Goodnight, I had no idea you felt this way about it''.

"You know, Mr. Goodinght, I had no idea you lett this way about it."
"Well, I was once a boy myself", said he, nudging me in the ribs.

"Yes, so were we all", I sighed wistfully, a truant tear glistening on my cheek.

Looking into his sympathetic eyes, I knew that he understood. I also understood—that it was time to go. Exit.

PROFESSOR KIEKHOFER

"Good afternoon, Doctor"! I greeted him in my most affable manner.

"Sit down and make yourself comfortable", he responded, offering me a cigar and a Police Gazette.

May I ask, what are your views on the League of Nations'?

"Well, I can only repeat the inevitable conclusions which I have so often voiced in my lectures. If humanity has been struggling upward all these centuries only to be confounded in a maelstrom of incoherent utterances concerning alleged altruism, without any discernible evidences of results obtained or obtainable, then human achievement is a popular myth, with nothing of substantiality to establish its existence.

"That is very true," I answered, concurring in everything he said.

"Further, the problem is of particular importance to you and your generation, venturing upon the threshold of adolesence, because it is upon the unborn peoples that the burden will of necessity resolve itself. All that tread this terrestial sphere are but a handful to the tribes that slumber in its bosom; and, in like manner, the myriad peoples yet to live, move and have their being, defy the utmost reaches of phantasmagoricalimaginativeness, finite or hypermundane"

"No room for argument there", said I, getting into the spirit of the thing. "Have I explained the proposition satisfactorily"?

"Beyond my fondest hopes, Doctor. I thank you immensely. In fact, I'm much obliged to you. I wish to express my thanks. I—er—I'm very much obliged'.'
"That's all right, young man. I'm always glad to accommodate my friends in any way that

He was the very picture of courtesy. Courteously he helped me on with my coat, with my rubbers, my surtout, my cap, my tam-o'-shanter and my cape. Courteously he assisted me out the door; and courteously he shut the door after me. With equal courtesy I walked away.

LOUIS KAHLENBERG

The great chemist was sitting in a tub of boiling water.

- "I have established beyond all doubt that boiling water contains a certain amount of heat", he announced exultantly.
  - "Heat"! I exclaimed, my face livid with astonishment and chagrin.
  - "I'll say so"!
  - "But, Mr. Kahlenberg, that is in direct conflict with Boil's Law".
- "Yes, I realize that. My discoveries indicate that I am about to effect a complete revolution in the field of hydraulics".
  - "In that event, you have done quite a Job. Let we warn you not to let it go to your head".
- "O, that wouldn't matter much anyhow. The main point is to let out the truth and confound. these postulous errors, don'cha know"!

I nodded in acquiescence, and went out right merrily, happy in the new discovery I had made.

PROFESSOR LEONARD

The poet sat in his chair, his hair sticking out in all directions (as any great poet's must.) He was reading Doris Blake's column in the Tribune.

- "Good morning, Mr. Leonard".
- "Oh, hello! Ain't you a little early? Have a seat. Any of them chairs 'll do".
- "Thanks. Now , Professor, I would like to get your views on modern poetry".
- "Well, it's this way. I ain't 'specially interested in none of these modern poets, being as I've figured that there ain't any great poets to speak of. You may have saw in the 'Lit' that I'm calculated to be purty good, but of course I wouldn't say so. If the world understood me, I might get all that was comin'. Anyhow, I'll take care o' myself, and if they don't like it they can lump it'!
  - "That is very true", I answered sadly, and, I must confess, with a lump in my throat.
  - "Well, anything else you'd like to know"?
  - "Thank you, sir, I feel that I have taken enough of your time already".
  - "Well, then, get the deuce out o' here"!

I did.

PROFESSOR KLEINHEINTZ

His nostrils quivered as the aroma of his sheep ascended through the planks of his manor house on its way to high heaven. He drank in the almost visible odor in great gulps, the while he stroked his beard which was fashioned out of the finest Peruvian sheep skin.

- "I hear you speak to them in their own language, Professor Kleinheintz", I said.
- "Baa-aa", he siposted with his gutteral Teutonic playfulness.
- "I like not to shop talk", he said balefully.
- "Lamb shop, so to speak", said I copying his words into my note book.
- "Baa, mutton head", he replied picking up a toothpick fashioned from the hoof of a ewe and excavating his bicuspids daintily.
- "Don't ram that down your throat", I said dodging behind a manger in time to escape the pitchfork which he tried to put into my vest pocket. "And, don't try to pull the wool over my eyes."
  - "Aber-aber-" he shouted struggling for breath.
  - "But me no buts, professor said I, and I left him piling his hair on the table in neat piles.

PROFESSOR SNOW

"Do you agree with Judge Geiger that 2.5 percent beer is not intoxicating, professor"? I said to the venerable man, who was in the garden shaking apples from the trees to illustrate Newton's law of gravitation.

"Hist"! he said, casting a glance about", I can not tell at present, but they say that the great lady who lives in Lathrop Hall knows all". He whispered in my ear the formula for which I had been searching.

"The same stuff that Teddy Deakin carried into the French house with her at three A. M., is it"?

Here the eminent physicist took time to throw chalk and other apparati at me, the while he shook violently.

"Pardon me, my good man", said he, "but I must have my exercise regularly".

"Oh certainly", I answered picking my false teeth out of his vest pocket and adjusting my glass eye. "Am I to understand that this tuning fork is to be a present to me"? (I referred to the one with which he had just pierced my jugular vein.)

"Don't you see it? Don't you see it"? he shouted, reaching for a static machine with one hand and for me with the other.

"That's all right Frofessor. That's all right", I crooned "You better keep that yourself. My bicycle is right outside. "I left him singing "You Can't Have the Key that opens my Cellar".

PROFESSOR JASTROW

The great spiritualist was wrapped in thought and a leopard skin as I entered through the cold air flue. In a corner the plaintive strains of Good Bye Jake Jastrow sung by Fritz Manson and the Beta Quartette were emerging from the Brunswick.

"Jastrow"! I emitted sonorously. Then again, "Jastrow! Jake!" I finally hallowed in desperation.

"Ah, you are then a friend", he said snapping his fingers and blowing out a cloud of has heesh smoke. "Hist! be still", he said clutching his ouija board to him. "I am about to receive the formula for Hennessy Three Star Brand from old Hen himself".

"A raisin y-ee-a-st—who can describe the pleasure and passion of that last sad—" spelled the board.

"Dang it! There's Ella Wheeler Wilcox on the line again.

"There's nothing in it. Pete Burns and I have decided", said he executing a pirouette and exiting with a Swedish clog.

FOUR BELLES

"The King is dead; long live—" But why this irony? There is no new king,—except perhaps tea dancing. Alcohol—"so excellent a king; that was, to this, Hyperion to a satyr"!

The magic fluid is gone,—that sparkling water of fairyland that was wont to madden pirates on the high seas, inspire great poets, sponsor joviality in wondrous old taverns, and raise us above the commonplace into the golden realms of romance and adventure!

Not long ago, in the mellowness of moonshine on the shores of our own Lake Mendota, there could be seen happy, hearty groups, encircling the oaken kegs from which flowed a brew as sweet as walnuts, as smooth and soft as seafoam! Here, indeed, was good-hearted beatitude, wholesome magnanimity! But now—the mental vacuity and weariness of the tea dancer, evidenced by the half-closed eyes, the amorphous expression, the languid smile. "That it should come to this?"!

Does all this seem immoral to you who used to read the obituary columns, and knew that Old Ethyl was the author? Well, you are probably right. But the evil has passed into oblivion, and therefore can be jested about. Anyway, we think that in this memorable year of the King's death we should not begrudge his memory a few pages. So grant us this our suit for forgiveness.

And you, O loyal host of the fallen King! Does our light treatment of this grave subject offend you? The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but deep in our hearts we are in utmost accord with you,—and even as we jest we wipe away a surreptitious tear.

"So pardon, gentles all, The flat unraised spirits that have dared On this unworthy scaffold to bring forth So great an object".

"AS MUCH A'PART OF THE UNIVER-SITY AS MAIN HALL"

As much a part—where have we heard that before? In the advertisements of the gentlemen on the left, to be sure. And who, you ask, is he? Keats Chu, the Irish orator? No, my little reader, you have guessed incorrectly. The Student's Life and Interests Committee? Wrong again—although this time you have hit the correct nationality. Then who is it? Oooh, I know—Herman Ludendorf Singer! Now that we have solved this enigma, let us cast our eye—or both of them, if we like, further down the page, where other familiar sights shall smite our optics.

ON UNIVERSITY PIER

You've sat of a balmy spring afternoon, and heard Cap Isabel talk about his son Frankie—haven't you? Well, here's Frankie himself, and a lot of little Frankies too. Isn't he a hand-some cuss? If he were only the official life-saver, we'll bet there'd be more feminine wrecks.

Cap. and his son Frank

"AS MUCH A PART OF THE UNIVERSITY AS MAIN HALL"

Oh, see the pretty flowers! Is this not an inspiring scene? It should be in the W. Campus Beautiful section, next to the photograph of Bert Zilmer. But it is here, and we must say something about it. What shall we say? Let us say that it is a living example of that homely old adage, that he who diggeth a pit for his enemy, verily, he doth not always fall into it himself Ponder on this, while the salt tears rise in your esophagus, and then glance below, where we see—

Tommy Atkins. But we thought she was a Chi Omega! Oh yes, my dear, but this is a different character, so to speak. This pensive, dreamy eyed individual is a member of the League to Uplift the Army. His aim in life is to suppress profanity, and the immoderate use of tobacco. Tommy does not believe in tobacco. It is true that he smokes a pipe, but he doesn't smoke tobacco. Just what, we can't say. Wet hay, at a venture.

"AS MUCH A PART OF THE UNI-VERSITY AS MAIN HALL."

On the right we have a diver. No, she is not a boy. She is a girl. No need of looking at the picture. You must take our word for it. We took the picture. She stayed in the air until we had taken the picture then she went into the lake. Fish are under water and will see her. Still some people say "the poor fish".

The boys in the lower picture are going into Lake Mendota to save the girl who just dove in. They are not heroic boys or they would volunteer to go in after her. They are being pushed in because they cannot see their duty and others must instruct them. This is one time in the life of a freshman when he does more thinking than he does talking. When they come to the top they will make believe that they do not enjoy being thrown into the lake. One of the hardest things a freshman does is to keep from showing his enjoyment at a time like this. This barbaric practice has been discarded at the university now because the freshmen enjoyed it so much that the sophomores could not throw them in fast enough.

"AS MUCH A PART OF THE UNIVERSITY AS MAIN HALL."

TO DAD

He always has a broad and cheerful grin; A genial twinkle lurks behind his specs; He's always glad to pass the time of day; His mark in life's great blue book is an Ex.

And when a stude is destitute of cash, And for a special purpose needs it bad, Though other folks would likely hem and haw, He knows the one who'll help him out is Dad.

His store's a sanctuary for the frosh, Pursued by sophs with stern and vengeful will; He's been a better friend to you and me Than most professors on the hill.

So here's to you, old Dad Morgan! Despot of the malted milk— Ruler of the hempen stogie, Potentate of the corn-silk!

And if I should get to heaven, (Likely on excursion rates)
May I find you in the pool-hall
Just behind the pearly gates!

And this is the way the Co-Eves get to meet the men they don't know. They call it tag day, and they have one three times a week. That is one reason why students starve to death. It is not the first instance where feeble Man has perished for a Female smile. You can play tag if you want to—we'd rather play House.

CANDY SHOP

Gaze upon the picture at the right, avert your eyes and draw the veil. Yes, gentle reader, it is a picture of the harmonious and beautiful surroundings in which the university student was wont to spend his time before the Y. M. C. A. had hardened his heart to the finer things in life. Here was no blaring music, and screeching clarinet. Only the gentle tones of the Nickolodeon lent its voice to the uplifting of the student's jaded spirit. Only the most soothing and health giving beverages were vended here. Here the Dean of men and the professors met the student on an equal footing.

But below, the vending place of the corrosive cocoa-colo. A place to which the student of to-day, with his depraved tastes, and his co-ed friend, resorts to satisfy his tastes for dissipation. George Bunge, and habitue, is seen in the foreground calling for more of the deadly cocoa colo to stimulate him to another catch-as-catch-can bout with his puss footing partner. "Red" Weston should have been in the picture but he was upstairs treading on his friends' toes when it was taken. "Van" Pinkerton, Van Hagen, and the rest of the Dekes are easily recognized in the background. After these unfortunates have swallowed their poison, they will go upstairs to move about with knees bent and chins thrust forward until the orchestra lets them go home.

And in the morning, do they have a reminder of the joy of the last evening? No, they do not. They have forgotten it, and all must go again the same day. Ah, how much happier was the student in the good old days.

Our Eating Clubs

PHI PSI

The Phi Psis are that homogeneous congregation of individuals which infest our campus with an imposing portly blockhouse situated on State Street as an operating base. Contrary to current belief, the situation just mentioned is not one consciously calculated to bring the brethern in close proximity or justaposition to the library. However, it has been the complaint of those in librarical authority, that passing effluvia of bandoline essence is inestimably disconcerting and distracting to those sober minded students seeking intellectual seclusion in the musty vaults of that most venerable building.

Among the notables are: (and may we be permitted to state that all Phi Psi notables are possessed of greased asphalt hair divided impartially in the middle.)

Freddy Smith, admirer of Freddy Smith who is on the Literary Magazine staff. He also belongs to the New Forum. He is prominent on freshman class committees.

George Bunge, Christian by name; heathen by conviction. It is estimated Georgie's bear grease bill amounts to somewhere in the neighborhood of—well, we can't say. Georgie's apparent expression is one of "Oh, girls, I'm knocking you cold. I can't help being good looking". Charlie Gutenkunstberger, Words are inexpressing.

Hans Fotre is that charming Creole gentleman—the stealthy marauder of Cap Breyley's beart.

Franklin Herring Shockey, a youthful Romeo (character in one of Shakespeare's plays). Gus Bussey, exponent of the gentle art of effeminate camouflage and shimmying.

SIGMA NU

Chapter Letter

We started the year this fall with only a remnant of our former chapter back. However, the fifty men that did come back are all fine men, and things have been made right by the pledging of forty men out of the freshman class. The last week has been comparatively inactive. We pledged four men Monday, two Wednesday noon and eight this morning. We might have gotten more only the A. O. Pis would pass on no more. There are plans afoot for a Sigma Nu block where we may expect to lodge at least the active chapter.

Among our celebraties is George Martin, the only Westerner from New York. a very virile young fellow, just teeming with turbulence and throbbing with bright red corpuscles. He carries a revolver in each pocket and wears leather underwear.

We have had the military integrity of the frat maintained by Joe Hopkins, who was promoted to corporal of squad six, company G.

Sparks Dodge alias The Ass of Spades, is a very clever musician. Sparks is one of Al Thompson's first string drummers (so he says). Sparks has oh, such a good time displaying ledgerdemaniac dexterity before large, wondering gatherings of girls in his classes. We wouldn't trust him in our pa's diamond store.

Slew Fanning is prominent on inter-class basketball teams. He comes from Delavan, which, shattering popular belief, is in the United States.

Frank Wolf, the galloping ass from Kenosha, has been active in the Mystic Circle, of which he is a sometime member.

Bert Mann is the cause of a well known expression. When someone noted his laziness, they asked innocently enough, "Is Mann alive"? Whereupon it was ejaculated by all present, "Mann alive"! The saying still survives.

Yours in Sigma Nuer,

Dick Ede

Gentlemen:

The last consignment of dress shirt bosoms which you sent to us contained many bosoms which we could not use due to their inflammability. In the future when sending detachable bosoms and cuffs, not to mention ties and collars, please send rubber goods rather than celluloid.

Also, please reinforce the right side of each bosom to withstand the strain put upon it by the new dance customs. In filing the collars, care should be taken to get all the rough edges removed. One of the boys recently cut his throat severely in putting on a moderately low one.

Aside from these minor difficulties, your bosoms have been very satisfactory. We have been able to clean them very nicely with warm water and a cloth, and no one has ever questioned their validity.

Dear Brother:

This is to remind you that the time has come around again for our Alumni to do their bit toward paying for the house. We have reduced our debt to $75,000.00, and prospects are encouraging. All we need now is the continued support of our loyal Alumni.

As you probably know, we are very prominent in school activities this year, and the other fraternities are having a hard time trying to keep on the map and furnish a little competition. Brother Francis L. Weston was elected captain of next year's football team. He is a fine fellow, and we know all the men will be crazy about him. He has a winning smile which both sexes find hard to resist. He surely is a fine fellow.

Brother Sterling Ewald made the Varsity swimming team. They say he's a regular fish in the water. The chances are that some of our girls will be around for swimming lessons this spring. That would certainly be nice for Sterling, wouldn't it? And it will increase our prestige too, because they will all be around our pier.

Our parties have all been lovely this year. You never saw such nice decorations, and we always have such peachy girls. We are planning a surprise for prom, and we expect to give our girls a real treat. Our Prom favors are gold fountain pens—don't you think that's fine?

We want to remind you again about the house debt. We know you will be prompt and eager in sending your share.

Fraternally yours, Eddie Matthews

Bill Hoard—High ho, there they are. Bill Hoard—High ho, there they are. Run out and grab their suit cases Gausy. Shorty—Put' em in my room and Holbrook's. We'll go down to the hotel tonight.

Bill—Now fellows, altogether, skyrocket for Smith's orchestra.

Bob Orr—Fellows, remember yourselves at the table tonight. These men have been all around the world, and we want to make a good impression if we expect to pledge any of them. If we're careful maybe we can get old Smith himself. Bill—'Nother skyrocket, altogether now.

Shorty—I guess we won't make a name around school with this blowout, eh? It's almost enough reward for having to bring a flapper. Call up the Phi Psis and get some hair oil, Bill, while I run over to the Phi Delt house and borrow some dress suits.

Gausy—Anybody got a double barreled shot gun I can use for a pair of pants?

NEXT DAY

Bill—Well, that's four hundred bucks blown away. Shorty—And to think they weren't the originals. Gausy—The S. A. E's pledged the trombone and sax. Bill—Who was with Eva Mueller on the landing during intermission? Shorty—It all comes back to the four hundred bucks. All—Four hundred shot to h—! (Exeunt groaning.)

KAPPA SIGMA

Chapter Letter

We opened up the year with some of the old bunch (that would come back), and the same old house (what is still hanging together.) We pledged about everyone we could get, and we should judge there are between fifty and sixty of the yearlings. We have had at least twenty pledges in the house at the same time, and most all of them have seen the house.

We are exceptionally well represented on the faculty this year. Porter Brown, our demon banjo walloper, has a Spanish class which meets under his auspices. Then, the Dean of men is a Kappa Sig. He is a fine fellow and some of us like him. He almost gave Montgavin a job, but Monty couldn't qualify. We have other prominent faculty members, but I forget who they are just now.

The University football team is composed chiefly of Kappa Sigs. That is, Scotty, the big red faced ex-bartender plays, and then there is a fellow by the name of Sundt, that is on the squad. He will make a W in a few years.

We almost won the bowling tournament, but the S. A. E's pledged some professional bowling chaps and won out.

All of us get away strong with the girls. Bob Esser gets away with Dorothy Mitchell, and Porter Brown used to get away with Joe Pierson. Scotty gets away with Dorothy Deaton, and Phil Falk gets away with murder.

That is about all, except that Perch McBride, nephew of uncle George and clerk of Hurley and Reilly is no longer with us. I guess a member of the faculty I have already mentioned, got tired of him, or something.

Your's in Ka Si Hinky dinky change-(Concealed identification) X. Y. Z.

DELTS

Conversation in the Delta Tau Delta house any night.

Bob Thompson to Al Rogers, both all stooped over from sinelling cellars: "Thus far we have been unable to hire any one to put out the pier for us. It would be terrible if the brethren should be forced to stoop to menial labor and put the thing out themselves"

"Yes, that is manifestly impossible. We must retain the esteem of Tommy White, and she frowns upon such debasement".

"Did I hear somebody say something about a cellar", says Fritz Mann leaving the piano and coming into the group around the fireplace.
"Yes", answered Bob, "That stuff in the cellar should ferment within the next few days. Unless that home-brew proves to be a success it is rumored that T. N. E. will not make us a subsidiary chapter as they had planned to do. .To uphold our reputation we must make our formulas work''.

Exit all singing "Ya, Ha, Ha, T. N. E., Shoo fly copper get away from me".

See them fellows on the right? One's Pete Burns—ain't he a sight? John Runkel's standing by him there; I wonder will he cut his hair.

They're posing for this picture though, Pete's just settin' there for show. He really came in to purchase That bay rum you see in the case.

Runkel bought a phonograph. That brought him all the customers Singer saw it was no laughing matter, So he bought a phonograph too.

Singer and Runkel love each other
Just like what poison will do to you.
I'm glad I'm on fairly good terms with them
Or when I go in there to get a shave I'd get my throat cut.

Where There's a Will, There's a Weigh.

THERE IS NO WOMAN'S SECTION

It is a task of the utmost difficulty for us to apologize for having no woman's section as we had planned and as you had doubtless anticipated. However the character of the feminine contributions is such, and you would agree should you see it, that it would be impossible to print it here. It is scandalous in its very nature. It is essentially gossipy and risky (to use the French.) It is unqualifiedly back-stabbing and gore-spilling. In order to fill up the rest of this page we might quote bits of the mildest and most suitable of the collection.

FOR INSTANCE:

It was spring. A Chi Psi Brother was strolling with a femme. "Yes", said the Chi Psi quoting, "in the spring a young man's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of—". He hesitated over the triteness of his observation and in search for originality looked down at the book he was carrying and ended "to thoughts of Anatomy".

Dorothy Seaton wanted her keeping company with Gordie Fairfield advertised.

The D. G. overflow at the Red Mill headed by Helen Hooper is wont to kid the unsuspecting Romeo into all sorts of predicaments, as George Geiger and Fred Beckman will testify.

Hobie and Don are at outs over Gladie Wang.

Olive Peterson and Ed. Beardsley have had their partnership threatened by the advent (or deboo correctly speaking) of Don Murdock.

Kenneth Harley's feet have recovered from last year's prom. We reckon scientifically that Bud Follett's feet will be proportionally as sore as the ratio of Dierdre's weight to that of Irene.

Dean Nardin is—but no, we had better not print this one.

The Gamma Phis stated they had tried to line up on the Kappa cellar gang, but had fallen asleep of exhaustion after wading half way through it.

The Pi Phis have decided next year instead of the usual rushing, to install a registration booth in Main Hall—SIGN HERE FOR PI PHI

The D. G's. feel that they are slipping fast. A hurry call for Marg. Hall has been sent, and Al. Rogers has been accepted again.

Bill Delaney of the patent leather hair and the pink collars, it is reputed, is trying to outdo Sherrel Steinwender (try to spell it yourself.)

For some reason or other Ralph Horton will not usher at prom this year.

Sherrel Stemwinder of the bell trow wears mink cuffs on his sleeves. Doesn't it seem he is conspicuous enough with that beak and those voice. Sailor pants begosh.

Whitney Seymour, the Henry Street male Vampire, has gone far enough with his carousing. This school admires boyish boistrousness, but it emphatically discourages carrying on as Mr. Seymour does. It is rumored Whitney and his namesake Eli Whitney were out behind the Phi Gam house drinking cotton gin.

IN RECOGNITION

The 1921 Badger now exists, a completed whole, and as such it represents the earnest endeavors, and honest labors of a noble staff; it represents the wise counsels and advice of those interested in its success.

To those persons, not on the staff, who have been instrumental in the success of the book the Badger Board wishes to express its sincere gratitude. Professor W. A. Sumner, faculty advisor to the Badger Board, deserves special credit for his splendid spirit of cooperation, and his ever present willingness to aid. The professional art work is the result of Mr. Brockhausen's untiring efforts and keen interest in the success of his work. Mr. Koch of the Print Shop, engravers, and Mr. Rogers of the Rogers Printing Company, printers, have been of great assistance in their phases of the work.

The greatest recognition, however, is due the staff. At the beginning of the year there was not one of them who had had experience in Badger work, not one of them who had any very definite knowledge of college annual work, but they did have those things which are greater, and more necessary than experience or technical knowledge; they had a desire and willingness to serve faithfully, they had a determination to produce the best, and a determination to see the work through. These are the things which have created the book. Not one or two, or even six persons have built this volume, but rather it is the work of many hands. It is the product of the staff, the whole staff. The book is their work—it is their book—to them belongs all credit.

Young men and women going into the business world will find one of these six pound typewriters a great help. Your correspondence will give a much better impression if it is typewritten.

Alexander Kornhauser Company

THIS IS A STORE where costuming is held an art-where a distinctive atmosphere prevails and influences every selection. A store where the critical woman will always find her apparel anticipated. It is a store where dress is understood as an expression of the personality of the wearer—A helpful store which gives fullest recognition to the demands of fashion and fulfills it conscientiously. Quality is the standard by which value is measured here. Cheap merchandise finds no place in this store. Low price—quality considered—is the aim and achievement of this store.

For Activities like these wear a Braxton

For dress you want a belt that has style; for business, one that is comfortable; for play, one that allows of unhampered movement.

In the common run of belts you get at most only one of these services—when you wear a Braxton, the belt for men, you get all three.

Have your haberdasher show you a Braxton, and in a flash—quick—you'll see why.

You'll find Braxtons made up in seven superb leathers, with snaps for interchangeable buckles; you'll find a combination of color, cut and finish that will delight your eye and smarten up your appearance.

And you'll note that at the points where it encircles the hips, the Braxton is specially shaped it's what makes the Braxton so easy to wear at the desk, on the courts, or while "stepping out". This feature likewise gives your trousers a hang that's exactly right.

Your favorite men's shop will have Braxtons. You can get yours today.
